

Testimonies At Odds

... Erlichman Contradicts Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman told the Senate Watergate Committee a much different story Friday than it had heard from John W. Dean III about crucial White House meetings on Watergate earlier this year.

In a fourth day of testimony, the former chief domestic adviser to President Nixon testified:

—He doesn't think Dean told the President as much about the Watergate cover-up last March 21 as Dean says he did.

—Dean told Ehrlichman and former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman that they were not indictable in the cover-up, the opposite of what Dean testified.

—Nixon considered Ehrlichman and Haldeman as principals in a battle over executive privilege, not principals in the cover-up as Dean claimed the President told him.

He and Haldeman did not suggest pushing former Atty. John N. Mitchell out front as Watergate scapegoat as Dean testified, but rather simply wondered at one point whether "we are taking all this anguish just to protect John Mitchell?"

Questioning was periodically interrupted for Senate votes on legislation to alter campaign finance law—a topic the Watergate committee plans to consider later this year.

Hostility which had been evident between Ehrlichman and the committee Wednesday and Thursday appeared, at least on the surface, to slack off Friday during the morning's questioning by Sens. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.

Ehrlichman testified at length about an interview he conducted April 5 with Paul O'Brien, an attorney for the Nixon re-election committee, after Nixon asked Ehrlichman to inquire into the Watergate affair.

O'Brien's interview brought me a whole new picture of this matter," Ehrlichman said.

He testified that he learned details of post-Watergate payments to defendants and their attorneys, heard that a campaign spy had worked as a driver for onetime Democratic presidential hopeful Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and was told a former campaign aide was ready to report that Nixon had ordered the campaign's eavesdropping "project to go on."

Ehrlichman said O'Brien told him that Jeb Stuart Magruder, onetime deputy campaign director, was saying this spring that when Magruder had tried to fire

Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy a year earlier, Liddy went to White House aide Gordon Strachan and Strachan reported back to Magruder: "Move Liddy back; the President wants this project to go on."

Ehrlichman noted that his information from O'Brien was third-hand. Strachan mentioned no such conversation in his testimony to the committee Monday; Magruder has already admitted perjuring himself in the cover-up.

Ehrlichman said he asked O'Brien if the attorney had any other information which might take the Watergate matter up to the presidential level and was told no.

The assignment to inquire into the Watergate affair did not come from Nixon until March 30, said Ehrlichman, nine days after Dean says he told all to the President.

Dean had also testified that in another meeting with Nixon on March 22, he was disappointed in Nixon's reactions to his disclosures of March 21 because "it was a further indication that there would be no effort to stop the cover-up from continuing."

Ehrlichman said Dean made no mention of his disclosures to Nixon in a meeting the afternoon of March 21 involving Ehrlichman, Dean and Haldeman.

Sen. Gurney said: "Here is what puzzles me: Dean told the President all he knew about Watergate March 31, you join the President the next day. Didn't the President now say 'listen here, fellows, I heard about all of this from John Dean. Who's going to do what, how are we going to get this out?'"

Replied Ehrlichman: "I have great difficulty believing the President was told what Dean says he was told because of the President's approach to this which I saw . . ."

Dean has testified that Nixon gave him oversight in the Watergate matter Feb. 27 because it was "taking too much time from Haldeman's and Ehrlichman's normal duties and he also told me that they were principals in the matter, and I, therefore, could be more objective than they."

Dean also testified that on March 21, a meeting among him, Ehrlichman and Haldeman produced the decision "that the way to handle this now was for Mitchell to step forward and if Mitchell were to step forward we might not be confronted with the activities of those involved in the White House in the cover-up."

Young Science Fan Enjoys Creek Study

By PATTY BEUTLER

Will Fraizer likes science for the "doing."

And as a participant in the 1973 Nebraska Wesleyan University Student Science Training Program in Environmental Science, Will has been doing plenty.

The Southeast High School senior is one of 37 students from 17 states to take part in the National Science Foundation-funded six-week program under the direction of Dr. Paul Laursen.

After some group field biology work and analytical chemistry for background, Will and some of his student colleagues have teamed up to study the water quality of Stevens Creek for their individual project.

Will's share of the project deals with examining the animal life from samples of the creek water.

Early results from Will's analysis show that there's plenty of oxygen in the stream to support a wide range of animal life.

"Optimistic" and "hopeful" about the condition of the stream Will is concerned that "people know what's there before they go in and tear it up."

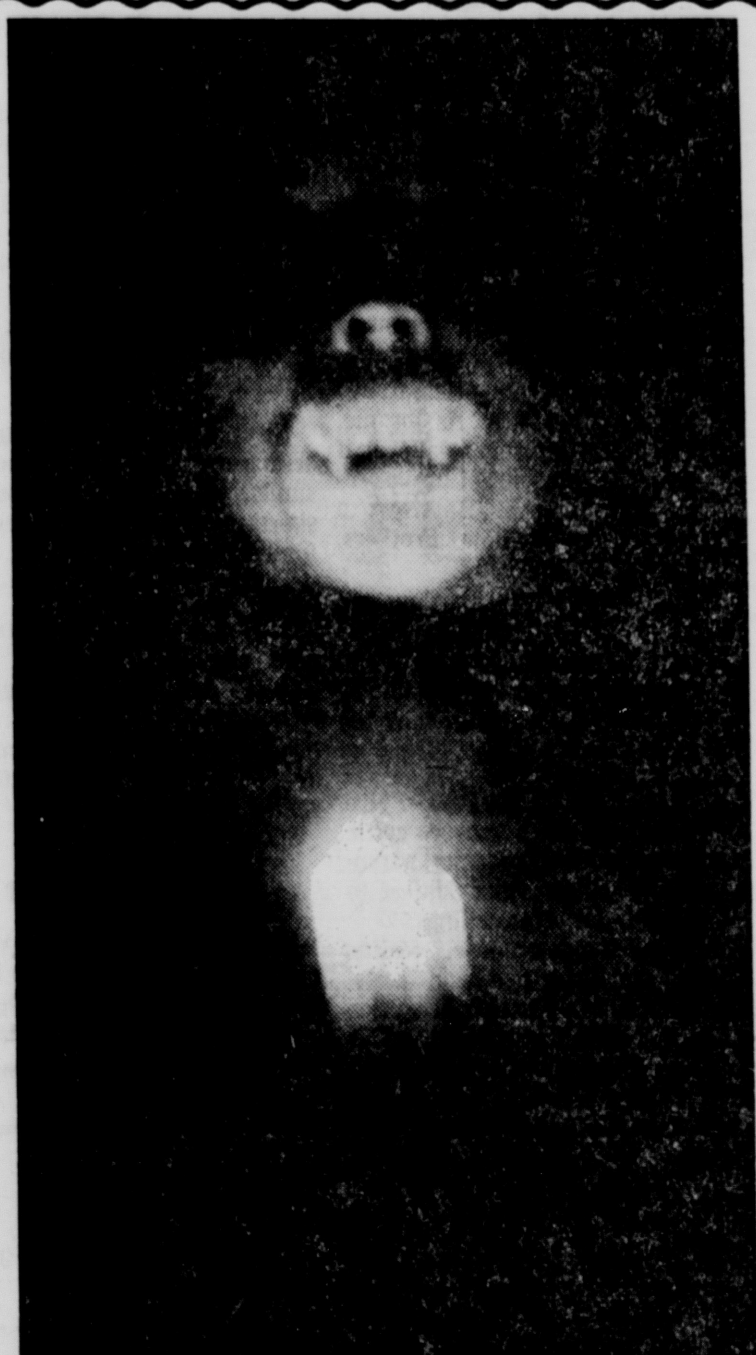

Although he's not expecting perfection in his study, he hopes to produce more than "just a body of facts." The Nebraska Natural Resources Commission has already indicated that they would like a report of the study for their files.

Will's interest is the environment and in preserving the conditions that exist now in the state. "I can't say Nebraska is horribly polluted," observed the young ecologist, "but we must find out where we stand and try to find ways to solve what problems we have."

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Fraizer, 6007 Norman Rd., Will "muddled around with a chemistry set and model rocketry" as a child. His interest has been sustained through high school science courses and laboratory work.

Not a "self-made textbook reader" at home, Will keeps up with new scientific developments through magazines and newspapers.

A science fiction fan, he prefers those books that deal more with ideas that could possibly come true than with "fantasy" themes like green men on the moon. But he added, with caution, that some science fiction stories from 30 to 40 years ago are "laughable" today because they've come true.

Texas After UNL Dean Of Dentistry

... $11,000 Pay Hike Offered

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Dentistry Dean Richard E. Bradley has been offered a similar job at the University of Texas at a salary $11,000 more than he earns here. The Lincoln Star learned Friday.

The Star was told that Bradley, dean of the UNL college since 1968, is the first choice for the deanship at the Texas school, which has just built a new multimillion facility to house the dentistry college there.

The salary offered Bradley was reported at $44,000 per year, compared with the $33,000 he will make in Nebraska this year. His salary was $30,000 prior to July 1.

Bradley, who has been on the UNL staff since 1959, is a periodontist who has been active in a number of national and regional societies and organizations.

He has served as an officer of the American Society of Periodontists and has received an honorary degree from the International College of Dentists.

He has also served as a trustee of the American Fund for Dental Education, as a member of the

The major reason, The Star was told, was NU finances.

The Star was told Friday that Bradley had not yet made a decision on the Texas offer.

59 Days In Space . . . Skylab Liftoff This Morning

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

— The Skylab 2 astronauts prepared on Friday for a record 59-day space stay during which they will put a new sun shield on the space station and learn more about the earth, the sun and man's ability to make trips to other planets.

Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma planned to board a modified Apollo spacecraft atop a Saturn 1B rocket at about 4:30 a.m. EDT Saturday. At 7:11 a.m., the rocket was to hurl them to the 85-ton space laboratory that has been empty since the Skylab 1 crew ended their 28-day mission June 22.

They are to link up with the space lab 270 miles overhead at 3:41 p.m. Saturday.

At a Cape Kennedy news conference Friday, Skylab project director William C. Schneider said the Skylab 2 crew would make a space walk next Tuesday and extend a long vee-shaped sunshield over the space station's living quarters.

The space station lost its heat shield when it was launched in May, and the Skylab 1 crew carried up an umbrella-like shield which they extended through a hatch in the roof and popped open.

Schneider said NASA decided to deploy a new sunshade because the blazing sun of space may have caused the first fabric-and-aluminum shield to deteriorate.

The Skylab 2 crew will concentrate on solar astronomy during the two-month stay in America's cabin in the sky, adding to the masses of data brought home by the Skylab 1 crew last month.

Medical scientists also hope to learn more about the physical adaptations to weightlessness that occurred in the bodies of the Skylab 1 astronauts during 28 days in space.

The Skylab 2 astronauts had early morning physical examinations at Cape Kennedy on Friday, then spent the rest of the day relaxing and talking with friends and Space Center officials.

The Skylab 2 astronauts will also turn the orbiting scientific laboratories' instruments on the blue, brown and green earth as it revolves beneath them. They hope to test its geological structure, ocean currents, cloud patterns, pollution, crop diseases and a dozen other areas of interest.

Medical researchers said at Cape Kennedy on Wednesday that the Skylab 1 astronauts — Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz — exhibited physical adaptations to weightlessness that included loss of muscle tissue in the legs, a decrease in the body's calcium supply and a decrease in the number of red blood cells.

The calcium and tissue decreases probably were the result of decreased stress on leg bones and muscles that received little exercise in a weightless environment, and the red cell decrease probably resulted from breathing air with lower pressure and higher oxygen content than the air of earth, the researchers said.

The medical men hope the two-month Skylab 2 mission will answer a vital question — do the adaptations to weightlessness continue during the entire stay in space, or does the body adapt over a period of weeks and then reach a plateau at which further changes do not occur?

Immediate Bombing Halt Stayed

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals granted a government request Friday to stay a lower court order which would have required the U.S. Air Force to stop bombing Cambodia.

The lower court stop order by District Court Judge Orrin Judd of Brooklyn would have been effective at 4 p.m. Friday without appeals court action.

The three-judge appeals panel stayed it pending argument Aug. 13, two days before a bombing halt set by Congress.

Burt Neuborne, assistant legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said he would immediately ask the U.S. Supreme Court to vacate the stay.

"The grim fact is that the granting of a stay by this court will result in the continued killing and maiming of Cambodians and the continued risking of Americans lives in a combat operation which the executive has no authority to carry out," Neuborne said.

The order issued Thursday by Judd was sought by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and four Air Force officers, who maintained the bombing was illegal because it was not authorized by Congress.

In arguing for the stay, James D. Porter Jr., chief of the civil division of the U.S. Attorney's office in Brooklyn, contended that while Congress had not authorized the bombing, it had known about it since at least May 1970, and had voted the necessary money to carry it out.

Neuborne said that a majority of Congress had voted to halt the bombing immediately, but compromised on the Aug. 15 cutoff because antibombing forces lacked a two-thirds majority to override a presidential veto.

Judge Leonard P. Moore asked Neuborne: "Aren't you asking this court of somewhat non-military men to take the place of military authorities? How on earth can we determine the situation as it exists 6,000 miles away?"

"We're asking you to carry out your mandate," replied Neuborne, "The mandate of Congress is that there be no more bombing of Cambodia."

Judge Wilfred Feinberg asked the lawyers if the issue would not become moot after Aug. 15 — the bombing cutoff date set by Congress.

Porter at first said it would be, but then during a rebuttal said "we cannot assume what will happen."

Neuborne said the issue would not become moot because the issue of whether Congress must authorize a war would not be resolved.

In Washington, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said, "I am disappointed, though not surprised, by the Court of Appeals' decision to stay Judge Judd's injunction against the bombing until Aug. 13."

"While such stays are normally granted on appeals, I had hoped that we could have a hearing much before Aug. 13. One thousand American servicemen are risking their lives and $5 million are being spent each day on the bombing."

"Seventeen days is too long to wait for a resolution of this matter," she said.

Sewage Plant Aid Priority List Okayed

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Environmental Control Council Friday established a priority list for disbursement of federal and state aid for municipal sewage treatment plants through June 30, 1974.

The ranking was weighted in favor of those municipalities having a large population and a severe need for sewage treatment. Department of Environmental Control (DEC) officials indicated that readiness of a particular community to begin construction was not a factor in the formula, as it has been in the past.

Federal funds administrator George Ludwig said that approximately the first 26 of the 77 municipalities ranked will receive a portion of the $11.1 million the federal government plans to allot Nebraska.

That figure is up from the fiscal 1973 total of $7.4 million made available, but is still short of the fiscal 1972 figure of $15 million.

DEC Director James L. Higgins noted that $18.5 million had been appropriated by Congress for Nebraska in fiscal 1974, but the Nixon Administration chose not to release it in its efforts to hold down federal spending.

Even if it were released, Higgins said it would still not satisfy the state's needs. The total eligible cost of the 77 projects was pegged at $58 million, and he said a recently-completed survey of the state's needs in sewage treatment showed that $400 million would be needed to fund all municipal sewage construction.

"All we can do is hope for a higher allocation next year," Higgins said.

And Ludwig noted that not all of the first 26 municipalities on the list would necessarily get their entire share of the funds this year. For instance, he said the larger plants, such as Omaha's Missouri River plant, could get 10% of the total federal funds allotted to them this year depending on the stage of planning and construction.

The bulk of federal sewage treatment money is going to the urbanized regions of the nation, Higgins said, leaving a low priority on collection systems. He termed this a "serious" matter due to the large number of septic tanks in Nebraska.

The plants are built on a cost-sharing basis with the federal government paying 75%, the state 12½% and the local community 12½%.

Higgins noted that the list includes at least eight communities which were high on last year's priority list but never received funds due the impoundment.

Assuming funds are available, the municipalities having top priority for federal funds in fiscal 1974 are: Omaha Missouri River plant, Papillion, Bellevue, Omaha (grit removal system), Nebraska City, Blair, Plattsmouth, Scottsbluff, Hebron, Dakota City, Humboldt, Valley, Valentine, Decatur, Murray, Melbeta, Holbrook, Elwood, Gretna, Wakefield, Grand Island, Palisade, Eagle, Newman Grove, Cedar Bluffs and Dodge.

Political Campaign Ethics Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Do you really want to bring the political system of the United States, of our campaigns, down to the level which you are talking about now?"

The question, put by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. to Watergate witness John D. Ehrlichman had an edge to it. It accented a dramatic exchange of political views between a Senate veteran of eight election campaigns and a man who rose rapidly to the pinnacle of government without running for office.

Weicker, a Republican from Connecticut, had expressed his displeasure with clandestine campaign activities before in the eight weeks of hearings, and said he had long lost his sense of humor.

But now he was questioning Ehrlichman, who had hired retired New York policeman Anthony Ulasiewicz for private investigations. And Ulasiewicz said those investigations explored drinking habits, social activities and sexual peccadilloes of his subjects.

"I wonder if you might tell the committee what your concept is of politics in the United States, insofar as this type of activity is concerned," he asked Ehrlichman, President Nixon's former domestic assistant.

"Each candidate who contests the candidacy of an incumbent has the obligation to come forward and contest the fitness of that incumbent for office," Ehrlichman said. "He assumes the burden of proof showing the unfitness of the incumbent and I don't think in our political system that is limited to his voting record or his absenteeism."

Said Weicker: "Do you mean to tell me and this committee that you consider private investigators going into sexual habits, drinking habits, domestic problems and personal social activities as a proper subject for investigation during the course of a political campaign?" Ehrlichman said he knew of office holders who were not fit because of drinking. Speaking of Congress itself, he said: "The constituents at home have no way of knowing you can go over here in the gallery and watch a member totter onto the floor in a condition of at least partial inebriation. . . . I think that is important for the American people to know and if the only way it can be brought out is through his opponent in a political campaign, then I think that opponent has an affirmative obligation to bring that forward."

Weicker snorted that he had waged eight campaigns, six against Democrats, and that he had never known an opponent to use such tactics.

Ehrlichman: "I know that in your situation your life style undoubtedly is impeccable . . ."

Weicker: "I'm no angel."

Ehrlichman: "I thought you were."

Weicker: "Believe me, I'm not, and I worry about you siccing people on the landscape here. I've probably got a greater worry now that I've heard about this, than before I started."

Ehrlichman restated that looking into a man's drinking habits is legitimate inquiry.

"Maybe my standards are all haywire," he said, "that everybody in the Congress ought to be immune from scrutiny on that subject, but that seems to be an indefensible position on your part."

On they went, neither giving an inch.

"If there's anything obvious in Washington, D.C., it is that every aspect of our lives, legislatively, personally and in every way is subject to the scrutiny of a free press; . . . and is also subject to the scrutiny of our constituents," Weicker said. And as an afterthought he added: "Our wives, right."

"I want to state right now. Obviously you and I are at loggerheads on a very basic issue here . . ."

"I think you and I have a difference of opinion," Ehrlichman said. "Now certainly there are limits and I would be first to agree with you that there are areas, subject matters that are totally offensive to me as they would be to you . . ."

Weicker shot back: "You apparently consider it proper information to dig out and go ahead and win an election. Is it a proper information to dig out and carry an issue?"

"You mean blackmail?"

"I mean between the legislators and the executive branches of government."

"No, I don't think that's proper," Ehrlichman said.

"It's proper election campaigning?"

"It's proper to give legitimate facts to an electorate that bear on the fitness of an incumbent."

Weicker said that "I always thought that we settled these matters on the basis of issues."

Ehrlichman said in its investigations of candidates for appointment, the FBI always delves into matters of immorality.

"Don't put the FBI in the same category as Mr. Ulasiewicz," said Weicker. "I'm proud of the FBI."

Ehrlichman had said incumbents have tremendous advantages and that's why opposing candidates need to alert voters.

"May I point out that according to your theory the President was an incumbent?" the senator asked.

"I think an incumbent president has an enormous advantage," Ehrlichman replied.

Weicker got the final word: "He not only had an enormous advantage, apparently he went around and had this type of information handed to him which added to the advantage he had. I would say that made him rather unbeatable."

Cox Asks White House To Produce ITT Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox disclosed Friday he has asked the White House to turn over its files on the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. He called the file "of utmost importance" and said his request for it has been pending for some time.

Cox also said he asked for a confidential intelligence file kept by former White House counsel John W. Dean III.

He told a news conference he would seriously consider issuing another subpoena for that material "if something becomes urgently necessary."

Cox did not elaborate or describe what might be in the ITT file but his office has had under investigation the administration's handling of an antitrust case against the giant international conglomerate.

It also is possible that the file contains details of ITT's contributions in support of the 1972 Republican National Convention at a time when plans called for the convention to be held in San Diego.

'Black Market' In Beef Reported

CHICAGO (AP) — Black market style selling of beef is reported turning up in scattered sections of the country as meat supplies continue to shrink. It is aimed at meat packers, supermarkets and restaurants willing to pay extra to maintain business.

The extent of the practice is undetermined at this time and the picture is clouded by widespread rumor and speculation in the beef industry, still under tight government controls.

Middlemen in Illinois, New York and Louisiana have described various black-market operations in their states, however, and there are predictions the wheeling and dealing may become more prevalent as supplies get tighter.

"I've had several offers to buy black market beef. As for me, I've decided to stay legal even if it means going out of business," said Robert E. Bartlow, a partner in Bartlow Brothers, Inc., of Rushville, Ill.

Interviews with Bartlow and more than a dozen other farmers, packers and store and restaurant owners in Illinois produced a picture of how the process works.

It begins after the slaughterhouse purchases cattle from a rancher or farmer, a transaction which is not subject to government price ceilings.

The slaughterhouse, feeling the pinch of overhead costs, would sell to a packer at a price higher than that allowed under federal guidelines. The packer then processes the beef and sells it to his wholesale and retail outlets at higher than ceiling prices.

But under the Phase 3 ceiling prices, usually posted in clear view at the meat counter, store owners would find it extremely difficult to sell unlawfully without detection. So to stay in business and to stay competitive, they pay the illegal price and absorb the losses in sales to customers until Sept. 12 when the price freeze is lifted.

Gilbert Fourmigue, president of Econo-Meats, a Louisiana wholesale firm, said red meat supplies were drying up quickly and he does not foresee any deliveries beyond next week unless controls are lifted. "Farmers are determined," he said. "They're going to hold it out."

He said there is a black market arrangement operating which is similar to one during a poultry shortage: a supplier bills a buyer for 100 pounds of meat, but only delivers 70.

In New York City, a purveyor who employs about 40 personnel, described a different type operation — It is carried out by listing an expensive cut of beef on sales slip and by actually selling a cheaper cut.

Campgrounds May Be Closed
So More Timber Can Be Cut

Washington (UPI) — Acting on White House order, the U.S. Forest Service is putting prime emphasis on boosting timber production this year while cutting back recreational facilities in national forests, it was disclosed Friday.

The new policy — described as an effort to help ease inflation — could force closing of some forest campgrounds, biggest single recreation resource available to outdoors vacationers.

John R. McGuire, chief of the Forest Service, said the tentative "guidance" in operating priorities for the year which began July 1 had been sent to the agency's field offices.

"In light of the current high demand for timber products for housing, etc., and the national economic importance of increased lumber and plywood production, you must make every effort to insure that these (proposed new production levels) are met or exceeded," the report said.

Earlier this year, the administration proposed to offer 10.8 billion board feet of timber for sale from national forests this year. In an effort to help ease inflation by bringing down lumber prices, it decided in May to increase the goal by 1 billion board feet.

can't pick up the garbage. I feel we should close some rather than let them be run down."

McGuire said the plans cannot be final until Congress completes work on the Forest Service budget for the new fiscal year and the White House Office of Management and Budget decides whether to spend all appropriated funds.

But he said the document does reflect what the administration wants done at this point.

Filipino Says
He's Not Lost
Japanese Sailor

Manila (UPI) — A Filipino coconut farmer revealed Wednesday that he was not really a long-lost Japanese imperial navy sailor and said he had falsified his identity out of compassion for the missing man's family.

The white-haired farmer told newsmen he really is Tanaw Tao, 46, a native-born Filipino — and Not Ryoji Miki, a former seaman in the Imperial navy.

The Miki family said last week that its long search was over when it found Tao in the southern Philippines, where the sailor disappeared during the war at the age of 22.

"I endorse what the President is doing in fighting inflation," McGuire said. "But at the same time, I'm concerned about future shortages of recreation, timber, forage and the other products of our forests."

McGuire said administration budget proposals would hold Forest Service spending on recreation in fiscal 1974 at about the same level spent in the past year. But with the number of visitors to the forests rising by 5 to 10% a year, a standstill in funds actually means a cutback in service, McGuire explained.

"So we'll either have to close some campgrounds or tolerate lower standards because we

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's June index of leading economic indicators point to continued expansion of the American economy without a recession, a Commerce Department spokesman said Friday.

Preliminary figures showed the June index was up 1.9 per cent over May, an above-average increase, despite a slowdown in two key measures of employment activity.

The average work week in June declined to 40.7 hours, down from 40.8 hours in May, and initial claims for unemployment insurance totaled 238,000, up 6,000 over May.

The over-all growth in the index for the April through June second quarter was 2.4 per cent, the smallest growth rate since the third quarter of 1971. This was largely due to a 1.3 per cent decline in the April index.

The index is seen as a fairly reliable forecast of U.S. economic growth or decline, and a Commerce Department spokesman said it has never failed to forecast a recession since 1948.

He said the June figures do not forecast an approaching recession. "It does not say anything like that in the index," he added.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department released figures Friday showing that worker productivity fell 2 per cent in the second quarter, the first quarterly decline since the fourth quarter of 1970.

Although the lower productivity could indicate higher production costs, the figures for one quarter did not appear conclusive and in themselves did not seem to indicate any major economic difficulties.

In another report, the department said major labor contract settlements negotiated during the first half of the year conformed closely to the administration's 5.5 per cent wage guidelines. It said first-year wage rates averaged an increase of 5.8 per cent, down from the 7.3 per cent average gain for all of 1972.

Some economists have expressed concern over a possible recession because of the boom-like growth of the economy in the first quarter of the year.

There was a sharp decline in the growth rate from 8.7 per cent in the first quarter to 2.6 per cent in the second quarter, as measured by the gross national product.

The government has been seeking a moderate 4 per cent growth rate.

The Commerce Department spokesman noted the slowdown was also reflected in the indicators index for the second quarter, although growth continued strong for the second straight month.

"Taking the whole quarter into account, there was some slowdown in economic activity," he said.

The index stood at 166.6 per cent in June, compared with the base of 100 in 1967.

Four of the eight categories used in the index advanced: contracts and orders for plant and equipment, price-labor cost ratio, industrial materials prices and building permits.

The other four declined from May: average work week, initial claims for unemployment insurance, new orders for durable goods and stock prices.

But the Commerce Department spokesman saw no particular danger in the decline of the employment activity indicators. Of the over-all index, he said, "the declines were relatively small, while the increases were relatively large."

There was evidence that interest rates were continuing to rise in the economy as several major banks Friday hiked their prime lending rate to 8 3/4 per cent.

The administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends had no immediate comment on the increase.

Youths Converge On Site Of 'Summer Jam' Concert

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — With automobiles jamming roads bumper to bumper for miles, thousands of youths inched through this tiny village of less than 3,000 Friday en route to a rock concert expected to be the biggest since Woodstock.

The yellow-and-green canopied stage at the Watkins Glen Grand Prix race track was set, flanked by seven sound towers and two light towers and ready to rock from noon to midnight Saturday.

Some 200,000 rock fans are expected to attend the 12-hour fest, "Summer Jam." The program features the Grateful Dead, the Allman Brothers and The Band.

Concert promoters said the advance sale of $10 tickets exceeded 125,000, with 80,000 sold in the New York City area.

In 1969, rock events attracted 400,000 persons at Woodstock and 300,000 at Altamont.

Tents and lean-tos dotted the area inside the track grounds Thursday and Friday nights. Those who didn't use tents had sleeping bags stowed in cars or slept in van-type trucks and other vehicles. A Thursday night rainfall, accompanied by lightning, created large patches of mud but failed to dampen spirits.

Many brought their own food and water. But concession stands, pizza trucks and ice cream wagons did a gold-rush business.

A thousand portable toilets were set up throughout the area. Water was available from 10 wells that had been especially drilled.

Some of the would-be concertgoers have been arrested — a few on misdemeanor charges that included possession of drugs and others for traffic violations.

But a Schuyler County deputy sheriff manning a command post at the track said, "The general behavior of the people has been very good."

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents Thursday and Friday while driving to the concert site at the Watkins Glen Grand Prix race track.

Those killed in the traffic accidents were:

Mary Jo Butler of Wayne, N.J., and John Manzo, 22, of Norwood, N.J., whose car skidded on wet pavement and struck a bridge section near Hancock on Friday.

William Schaaf, 20, of Stamford, Conn., whose car overturned in a ditch near Candor on Friday.

And Daniel Pezzella, 17, of Lynnfield, Mass., killed in a car-truck collision near Geneva on Thursday.

General Motors Tops Record For Six-Month Sales, Profits

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. announced all-time record sales and profits for the first six months of the year on Friday and predicted a continued excellent sales pace for the remainder of the year, barring major work stoppages.

The world's largest manufacturer reported profits of $1.614 billion through June 30, compared with net income of $1.374 billion for the first half of 1972, the previous high for the period.

The record income was based on worldwide sales of 4,795,000 for the first half of the year, compared to 1972's 4,258,000 vehicle sales statistics.

Income of $797 million for the second quarter topped last year's second quarter income of $723 million, but was short of first quarter income of $817 million.

General Motors Chairman Richard Gerstenberg and President Edward Cole attributed the quarterly drop to increased labor and material costs which were not offset by price increases.

Income as a per cent of sales was 8.3 per cent, down from 8.5 per cent for the first quarter of the year.

Record sales totaled $19,175 million for the first six months of the year, compared with $16,238 million for the first half of 1972. The half-year figure is based in part on second quarter sales of $9,606 million, still a record over 1972's record second quarter sales of $8,458 million.

For shareholders, the record six-month figures meant $5.62 a share earnings and dividend payments of $2.05. Last year, shareholders were paid $1.95 per share dividends on $4.78 earnings.

Gerstenberg and Cole expressed hope that current contract negotiations with the United Auto Workers would not break down and that the employees would not strike.

Another Chilean Is Assassinated

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Gunmen assassinated the chief military aide to President Salvador Allende early Friday, adding another volatile ingredient to Chile's increasingly tense political situation.

Navy Capt. Arturo Araya, 45, a burly, balding career submarine officer, was cut down by a volley of bullets as he looked from the second-story balcony of his suburban home after hearing a disturbance in the street.

Allende's leftist government immediately blamed the assassination on the extreme rightist Fatherland and Liberty movement. The group has been linked to an abortive army rebellion June 29 by members of an armored regiment which left 22 persons dead.

But Roberto Thieme, secretary-general of Fatherland and Liberty, said in a statement from hiding that the movement was not responsible for the assassination.

"This new attack corresponds to the most cold-blooded and Machiavellian decision by Marxism-Leninism to distract attention from the grave consequences of a just trucking stoppage and the greatest political, social and economic collapse in our history," he declared.

Police, aided by naval intelligence authorities, began a massive dragnet for Araya's killers. A number of arrests were made.

The assassination followed by a day a walkout by some 50,000 truck owners throughout Chile in protest against the Allende government's alleged inaction in raising cargo rates and providing for imports of needed spare parts and tires for their vehicles.

Allende called the walkout "seditions" and ordered confiscation of all trucks belonging to those participating in the walkout. The effects of the walkout were immediately felt in Santiago with rationing of gasoline and dwindling supplies of fresh fruit and vegetables.

The walkout also brought sporadic violence. Forty injuries were reported Thursday in confrontations between truckers and leftists. Dozens of filling stations were damaged in raids by unidentified bands.

The death of Araya was the third major assassination since Allende became the first Marxist president in the Western Hemisphere to assume office via a free election in September 1970.

Gen. Rene Schneider, Chile's army chief, was assassinated in October 1970, days before Allende was confirmed as president in a special congressional election.

His slaying was blamed on rightists who panicked in a bungled attempt to kidnap him and spark a military coup to keep Allende from the presidency.

Edmundo Perez Zujovic, the former vice president in the previous administration, was gunned down in June 1971 when his car was ambushed on a suburban street. That killing was attributed to left-wing extremists.

Banks Boost Prime Rate To Highest Level Ever

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major U.S. banks announced increases Friday in their prime rates to 8 3/4 per cent, the highest level in history.

Economists and bankers said it was very likely that the prime rate — the interest rate banks charge on loans to their largest corporate customers — may go as high as 9 1/2 per cent by this fall before beginning to level off.

They said, however, that the move was not necessarily a prelude to a credit crunch.

While the prime rate is not directly tied to small business and consumer loans, a prime rate increase often signals general increases in the cost of borrowing money, and its decrease in availability.

The credit experts say the prime rate, which has increased 11 times since the beginning of the year, when it was at 6 per cent, has been caused in part by a demand for loans from corporations wishing to expand to meet consumer needs for goods and services.

The Federal Reserve Board, concerned about the pace of expansion as well as inflation, has attempted to cool the economy by making money more expensive to borrow and less available.

One result is that many banks are paying high interest rates for money. That means, the experts say, the banks must charge more interest on the money they loan out.

2 Million Traffic Deaths To Be Marked By 1974

Washington (UPI) — A House subcommittee, placing much of the blame on unsafe highways, reported Friday that some time next year "the nation will pass the bloody milestone of 2 million traffic deaths since the advent of the motor car."

"Something has gone awry in the nation and its highway program," said the House public works subcommittee on investigations and review in a report on safety hearings started in May 1967.

The subcommittee suggested that too much emphasis has been placed on the "nut" and the drunken driver as the cause of accidents, and too little on the hazards built into the highway system.

"Highway professionals have been judged and rewarded almost entirely by their ability to build and hardly at all by their ability to engineer safety and human accommodation into what they have built," the report said.

Summarizing its findings over the six years of hearings, the subcommittee said, "The message is simply: 'Think people!'"

"Some time in 1974," the report said, "the nation will pass the bloody milestone of 2 million vehicle traffic deaths since the advent of the motor car." The National Safety Council recorded nearly 1.9 million highway deaths from 1900 through 1971, and reported that over the past two years, Americans were being killed at an annual rate of more than 56,000.

During the hearings, safety experts showed movies of sharp-pointed highway guardrails that had pierced autos and impaled the occupants; cars demolished by hitting solid concrete signs and lightposts; confusing or obliterated traffic signs, and slippery pavements.

"The life that is claimed by an unnecessary roadside hazard, a concealed rural intersection or a freeway designed in such a way that it overtaxes a responsible driver is a life lost through indifference and ineptness," the report said.

"... There are some undesirable by-products to everything, the rationale has gone, and death and injury are the price we pay for the instant mobility offered to us by our shiny 20th Century chariots."

"The fact is," it continued, "that while we have paid collective lip service to the concept of safety, we have been quite willing to compromise it and to trade it away out of ignorance for other economic, social or psychic benefits."

"Disturbing evidence (is) that public officials and highway professionals have too long trailed along behind the bulldozer and the concrete mixer."

Subcommittee Chairman Jim Wright, D-Tex., noted that $383 million has been spent since 1967 to eliminate hazards from the Interstate highway system. A bill just approved by Senate-House conferees would authorize $2 billion over the next two years to continue that program and to improve state and county roads.

Lawyer Urges Divorce Without Marriage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When the case of Michelle Marvin vs. Lee Marvin comes to trial this fall, it will raise a provocative legal question posed by Miss Marvin's attorney — should there be divorce without marriage?

In the free-wheeling filmland capital of the "serial marriage syndrome," the proposal doesn't seem outlandish. In Hollywood, divorce is a way of life for many. But attorney Marvin Mitchelson, noted for representing divorcing celebrities, hopes to take the case further — to the U.S. Supreme Court, if possible — to make the divorce without marriage concept the law of the land.

His theory: a lady has the right to a good divorce and community property even if she never was licensed to marry the man she loved and lived with.

"It costs $3 to get a marriage license," said Mitchelson. "I say that for a $3 license one should not have different rights than one who has the same relationship but doesn't pay the $3. I consider this unequal protection of the law."

In fact, Mitchelson wants to outlaw marriage licenses entirely. "The state has the right to license people for the protection of society," he contends. "They have a right to guarantee a skill. But what skill is required for people to live together? They can be two idiots!"

In the case of Marvin vs. Marvin, Mitchelson represents Michelle Triola, who changed her name legally to Marvin during the six years she lived with the Academy Award-winning actor. In 1970, the relationship cooled and suddenly Marvin turned up married to another woman, Pamela Feeley, the childhood sweetheart he had known for 20 years in his home town of Woodstock, N.Y.

Miss Marvin claims that the actor continued to support her until November 1971 and then refused to pay anymore. She hired a lawyer and demanded all the benefits she would have had as a divorced wife. She sued Marvin for half of his assets which she estimated as $1 million, claiming this was her equitable share of their community property.

Her suit, filed by Mitchelson, says that she and Marvin agreed orally that "they would combine their efforts and earnings and would share equally any and all property accumulated." The suit adds, "It was further agreed that during the time the parties lived together that plaintiff and defendant would hold themselves out to the general public as husband and wife and plaintiff would further render her services as a companion, homemaker, housekeeper and cook."

Marvin's attorney David Kagon declined to comment on what position he will take on the issues, but he indicated there would be no out-of-court settlement. "I have no reason to believe it will not go to trial," he said.

However, the trial is not likely to be the end of the case which Mitchelson almost hopes to lose so he can test its issues on appeal.

"I believe the trend of the law may and should move away from the classic concept of marriage and divorce," he said. "It's time to have a national set of principles relative to marriage and divorce and to emphasize the relationships between people that produce obligations and responsibilities, rather than just licensing."

"I'm not talking about one-night stands," he went on, "but about lasting relationships."

Hans Einstein Dies, Age 69

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Hans Albert Einstein, son of the late physicist Albert Einstein, died Thursday at Falmouth Hospital. He was 69.

Einstein had been at the hospital since June 28 when he suffered a heart attack at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute where he had delivered a lecture.

Death came to Einstein at 10 a.m. His widow had been with him since his heart attack.

Einstein was professor emeritus in civil engineering at the University of California.

Some states already recognize long-run relationships under common-law marriage concepts, but California does not accept common-law marriage. If Mitchelson convinces the high court to hear his case, he says it would be the first time justices have considered a marriage law question.

Individual states always have kept that area under their jurisdiction, and attorneys rarely raised constitutional issues concerning marriage.

In the Marvin case, Mitchelson contends that the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection and due process for all are being denied.

Mitchelson, 45, who started out as a criminal law specialist, has faced the Supreme Court before. In 1963 he won the landmark decision of People vs. Douglas which held that indigent defendants have the right to counsel in an appeal case.

But a year later, Mitchelson met a client who lured him into the divorce field — Pamela Mason. Buoyed by his victory in getting Pamela a $1.5 million settlement from actor James Mason, Mitchelson switched to the lucrative specialty of handling celebrity splits. His largest fee to date has been $750,000 for one divorce.

He took time off at one point to defend Italian airline hijacker Raphael Minicicello, who was convicted in Rome but served only one year in prison and became an Italian national hero of sorts.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

We could be in the midst of one of the most revolutionary periods in agriculture in the history of our nation. We are at the crossroads of a major new farm program in Congress, are trying to adjust food supplies to a controlled market situation and have, at the moment, perhaps the first "farmers' market" in a generation.

The farmers' market is one in which the man on the farm, for a rare change, is exercising some control over things and shaping the price of products, rather than living by whatever the market returns to him. The farmer is a seller and is in a seller's market.

It is strange that grain prices continue high and that futures seem to set a new record every day, since we have grain coming out our ears in many areas and are looking at a good production record for this summer. It is strange that cattle prices are strong but few cattle are finding their way to market.

The new farm program is looked upon by some as something that might have come from King Solomon himself. Supposedly, it will cost the government nothing but be a big help to agriculture.

Maybe so but only time will tell. The program might not survive even the presidential veto process, which would then leave us with the parity concepts of the past.

The new program is relatively simple. For agreeing to plant only his allotment, a farmer is guaranteed a minimum price for his grain by the government. The minimum is called a "target" price and will surely be substantially lower than prevailing market prices.

What the new program would do is put a floor under the price to be received by farmers and that is supposed to be an advantage to them and an encouragement to join the program and to produce. But the floor price would leave the farmer destitute and the nation, therefore, in serious trouble.

Thus, the new farm program is probably more a psychological thing than something real. With a fabric like that, the entire business could come apart at the seams with only very little strain placed upon it.

As for current market conditions, many factors are at work. While beef prices are high, cattle are not being moved to market in sufficient numbers to meet demand.

A number of things account for this. For one, the cost of raising cattle has climbed, too, making that high market price far less attractive than it might appear on the surface to be.

Also, the federal price freeze on beef has angered the cattle industry, motivating the cattle man to hold off on marketing for as long as possible.

Grain prices are high, despite what appears to be an ample supply. But transportation problems have hampered the movement of grain into consumption channels, creating artificial shortages.

Farm prosperity has been good the past year and farmers in general are about as well off financially now as they have been for a long time. Some are encouraged to hold off on marketing for the sake of a better income tax position.

And for whatever the reason, the farmer sees a favorable market for a change and likes it. It makes him a little independent and that tends to hold grain off the market.

The whole thing may blow sky-high in a year or so but it is fascinating while it lasts. Agriculture, like the rest of the economy, has been greatly affected by Phase 1 through 4 controls.

Australian Prime Minister, Nixon Have Much To Say

Washington — When a nation undertakes to change its foreign policy, it usually does so with all deliberate languor. That truism does not apply to Australia. Shortly after the Labor party took control of the government at Canberra in last December's parliamentary elections, Prime Minister Edward Gough Whitlam radically altered the course of Australia's foreign relations.

Among other actions, Whitlam transferred his country's China embassy from Taipei to Peking, ended military conscription, ordered the withdrawal of Australian troops from Singapore, and challenged French nuclear testing in the Pacific in the International Court of Justice.

That Whitlam meant business became evident during America's resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam late last December. The prime minister wrote a letter of protest to President Nixon, who declined to answer it.

As Barry Wain recently observed in Far Eastern Economic Review: "Clearly the days were over when one Australian prime minister would trek to the White House and promise to go 'all the way with LBJ,' and another would make the journey three times in 16 months to tell Richard Nixon that Australia would go 'waltzing Matilda with you.'"

Why, then, is Whitlam scheduled to meet with Nixon in Washington on July 30? Nixon didn't invite him. The fact is that Whitlam invited himself. For a time it appeared that Nixon would refuse to see the Australian leader when he passed through Washington en route to the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in Ottawa in early August. But the President announced on June 25 that he would indeed meet with Whitlam, and the meeting was later reconfirmed.

Whitlam no doubt will try to convince Nixon that his government's policy is not anti-American but pro-Australian. In a recent address before the Australian Labor Party National Conference, the prime minister said: "We want to move away from the narrow view that ANZUS (the defense treaty signed by Australia, New Zealand, and the United States) is the only significant factor in our relations with the United States and the equally narrow view that our relations with the United States are the only significant factor in Australia's foreign relations."

Whitlam, however, cannot escape the fact that the United States weighs heavily on Australia's domestic as well as foreign policy. Overseas investors (Americans and others) now own nearly all of the automobile, oil refining, and chemical industries, and are moving into mining, food-processing, and retailing.

Consider the American influence alone. An Australian, U. S. News & World Report notes, "could easily begin his day brushing his teeth with Colgate, hurry through a breakfast of American cereal and Carnation milk, stop his General Motors Car . . . to check his Goodyear tires on the way to work at IBM. His wife might wash the dishes with Ajax, tuck a Kleenex into her purse and go off shopping at Woolworth's and Safeway before meeting a friend at McDonald's for lunch." Australia needs the foreign capital, but not at the expense of being owned by foreign interests. So Nixon and Whitlam will have lots to talk about.

County Office Heads Right

County department heads seem to have the better of the argument with the County Board over pay for county employees. Department heads have proposed a budget with employee pay increases ranging from four to 14% but the board is considering an appropriation based on a flat 6.5% across-the-board increase.

The board proposal is linked to a proposed personnel study aimed at establishing more formal and equitable situations for all county employees. Presumably, the flat across-the-board change would provide the least disruption of things pending receipt of the personnel study.

Two points are in contention between some of the board and the department heads. The first is whether the proposal of the study should have any bearing on the new year's salary adjustments and we would think that it should not.

The study cannot be completed in time to have any influence upon matters in the 1973-74 budget. Thus, the issue boils down to one of whether the departments have equitably and efficiently determined their salary needs. Unless the board can show that such is not the case, it ought to go along with the raises proposed by the department heads, regardless of whether a personnel study is coming or not.

The second issue is whether there should be a study at all and that, too, is a good question. Some might even question whether there ought to be a personnel system for the county at all, though the weight of evidence probably falls in that direction.

But if there is to be a system, then it has been suggested that the county merely adopt one from another level of government, such as the city, state or the University of Nebraska.

Again, this suggestion from a department head carries a lot of merit. We are as sick of studies as is Election Commissioner Bill Davidson who suggested that the county simply take an existing system and use it as its own.

The whole matter to us is not one of earth-shaking importance. While some inequities in county job situations may exist and while a personnel system has the potential for correcting such inequities, such a system is seldom without flaws itself. On paper the systems are great but in practice they are often little better than the old way of the top man's simply figuring out who is doing the best job and paying them accordingly.

The greatest value in a personnel system is in its establishment of a personnel department and that department's handling of many matters beyond the level of salaries.

A Law-Abiding President

It is a measure of how far the law-and-order administration of President Nixon has strayed when the White House grandly proclaims that the President "would abide by a definitive decision of the highest court."

The issue, of course, is the subpoena of presidential tapes by Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox and by the Senate's Watergate Committee. If the Supreme Court rules that the tapes and/or other presidential documents must be turned over to either Cox or the committee, or both, the President will do so, we are told. Were we to believe that he actually might not have responded to the court's interpretation of constitutional law?

Surely, presidential defiance of an order of the Supreme Court would be clear grounds for impeachment. So the White House announcement is little more than a recognition of reality. The disturbing element in it is that Watergate has so distorted the administration that the White House found it necessary to assure the country that the President would obey the law.

There is something terribly sad about what the Watergate is doing to the presidency. But it must be done. The entire chain of events, and all attendant matters, must be thoroughly aired by the Senate committee and judiciously investigated by the prosecutor in order to purge the poison from the system. The guilty must be punished; the innocent must be cleared; the system must be flushed and healed before we can end this tragic affair. Then, hopefully, the system will be strengthened and improved for the testing which lies ahead. A renewal of the governing process is not an altogether inappropriate undertaking as we approach the 200th anniversary of our nationhood.

NEW YORK — By late October, 1971, Attorney General John Mitchell, exasperated by his difficulties with J. Edgar Hoover, had persuaded President Nixon to fire the elderly and cantankerous FBI director. An appointment for Hoover was made at the Oval Office; unaware of what was in store, he went over to talk to the President.

All afternoon, Mitchell waited at the Justice Department for word that the deed had been done. But the word never came. Finally, the attorney general called Nixon and asked what had happened.

"I had him in here," the President replied. "But I just couldn't do it."

That story, recalled by a former administration official, takes on verisimilitude from the testimony of John D. Ehrlichman that "the administration would have been better off if Mr. Hoover had been retired . . . He was fixed in his views and he had made operations very difficult."

At least two presidents and three attorneys general had reached that conclusion before Nixon and Mitchell. But no president did anything about it — all, probably, for the same basic reasons. Hoover was regarded as an ikon of law, order and patriotism by so many people that firing him might have been politically unprofitable; and he might, or might not, for all anyone knew, have been willing to use whatever information he had in his files against a president who tried to force him out — or against that president's associates.

So far as is known, however, only the Nixon administration took direct action to get around Hoover's "fixed views" and the frustrations they caused. Unable to face the political or other possible consequences of proceeding legally — by removing Hoover and bringing in a new FBI director, whose nomination would have had to be confirmed by the Senate — Nixon created his own secret police, answerable only to the White House, not known to the public or financed by specific congressional appropriation, and ordered these "plumbers" to do what he could not get the FBI to do.

This secret presidential police force then was given a highly charged "national security" mission — so much so that

Ehrlichman quoted from Nixon's own admission of May 22 that he could understand "how highly motivated individuals" could feel justified in breaking into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist to steal Ellsberg's medical records. (The same highly charged group of "plumbers," transferred intact to Nixon's re-election committee, where no national security matters had any place, later broke into Democratic party headquarters twice.)

Ehrlichman did not specifically order the burglary of the psychiatrist's office, he said, nor did Nixon. Yet they gave a low-level group of adventurers such latitude and urged that Nixon later could "understand" how the plumbers decided on the burglary. In fact, Ehrlichman said that, even if specifically unauthorized, the burglary was well within Nixon's powers to guard the national security — as, indeed, was the creation of his secret White House police unit.

To hear Ehrlichman tell it in his condescending manner, Nixon had the power to do virtually anything he pleased, and by authority of Congress, because of a statute setting out legal limits for electronic

JACK SISSON

They Had A Dream

Jack Sisson, a stocky, muscular Rhode Island militiaman, crashed into a general's bedroom and won himself a place in history. History noted the general, too, to the general's chagrin.

For what happened to Richard Prescott, a British major general, was a classic example of a bloody disgrace.

He was captured in his nightshirt, under the noses of his own soldiers, behind his own lines, and he was ignominiously marched in his bare feet to a waiting boat and whisked away, with his troops being none the wiser. To make matters worse, it was the second capture of his ill-fated career.

The abduction of Prescott, one of the most celebrated capers of the Revolutionary War, was the inspiration of a Providence, R. I., hatter-turned-soldier, Lt. Col. William Barton.

Barton needed an enemy general, any general, to trade for American Maj. Gen. Charles Lee, then a British prisoner. He got his chance to grab one when Prescott moved to a summer house outside Newport, R. I., to escape the heat of the city.

Learning of the move, Barton handpicked 35 men and four officers to pluck him off. Sisson was one of the first he chose. The husky Negro had been Barton's servant. Now he was a soldier — one of 5,000 Negroes who fought in the Revolution. And Barton knew he was brave and dependable.

The "commando" force pushed off in five whaleboats near Tiverton on Narragansett Bay on July 4, 1777. For the next six days, they stealthily slipped south through heavy concentrations of British ships and troops encamped along the shore.

Reaching a cove near the general's house, Barton and his men sneaked ashore at night and discovered Prescott had entrusted his safety to a single sentry. They overpowered him.

Then Barton and Sisson burst into Prescott's house and charged up the stairs to the general's bolted bedroom door. Sisson coiled his powerful frame and splintered the door.

While Barton and Sisson stood by, the bewildered general slipped on his breeches and waistcoat — over his nightshirt — but he couldn't find his shoes.

He was forced to stumble barefooted across an open field to the boats which then slipped away quietly as they had come.

The war had been going badly, and Barton's exploit had that comic quality which buoys flagging spirits.

The British chuckled, too, but they didn't chuckle when it came time to trade captured generals. Lee was Gen. George Washington's right-hand man.

Checks Go Through

Greenwood, Neb. The "Today's Chuckle" in the Friday, July 20 Star didn't make much sense, at least to us.

It read: "A good way to speed up postal deliveries would be to send all postal employees their paycheck by mail."

May I ask, how do you think they get here? My husband's comes through the mail, I can't think of any other way they could get here.

Watergate Hearings

Lincoln, Neb. Please speak for yourself, Carl, about Watergate. I thoroughly enjoy it and it's really amazing how many kooks are working at the White House.

I have never seen such a bunch of "forget-me-nots". They can't recollect where they went or why, but they were told by higher-ups to do certain things and they never thought there was anything illegal about it but did as they were told.

A 10-year-old would have smelled a rat and would have known there was something rotten in Denmark, with all the hush-hush.

Remember reading about the fall of Rome? Well this scandal might well be the fall of Washington, D. C.

The American people have certainly been taken for a ride by crooked politicians to the tune of millions of dollars. All this, caused by greedy people who want power and wealth, and who will cheat, steal and even lie to get it.

Yes, the Democrats have done some shady things but never, never involving so many people and such vast sums of money.

Why suppress the truth if you are not guilty? I really enjoy the hearings.

Tribute To Sandy

I have read of a few dogs so vicious that they turned on loving masters, even killing. So I agree with some of the things Mr. Marlin Pals says. However, there is the other side of the coin. It is called "Tribute To An Obscure Friend."

"The other day my friend, Sandy, died. We laid her to rest in the old orchard where she spent such happy hours with the neighborhood children who came to gather fruits."

"But that was a long time ago. The children have long since grown and gone, scattered far and wide. The sweet sound of their songs and laughter has, these many years, been only a memory."

"The years have a way of passing swiftly by and before we knew it could happen, Sandy and I were both old. We no longer strolled through the meadow and down the country lanes. But with faltering steps now, we shuffled through our days together."

"Then that morning she could not get up. Looking at me with sick, pleading eyes, as if asking forgiveness for what she had to do, she slipped away forever."

"I sit here, alone now, wondering how anything so small as she could leave such a vast emptiness in my house and heart."

"You see, my friend, Sandy, was a little mongrel dog. She never did anything heroic. She never won any prizes. But she was the faithful, loving companion of all my lonely hours, and the only unkind thing she ever did was die and leave me."

SANDY'S FRIEND

Need For Program

Shouldn't there be some type of program which could be installed to help the young criminals who have spent years behind bars, to reform and to be prepared properly for reinstatement into society instead of just being thrown out without the proper preparation?

Like many, I was only 15 years old when I entered prison and after 13 years I had many, many things to learn in a very short time once I was released on parole. I was not mentally prepared for what I met and I was returned to prison after only a month on parole.

I feel that if a man could be placed on a program where he is progressively released to his own custody after certain stages of progress was made and he had the opportunity to experience various things that he did now know, it would prove he could be a useful citizen once again.

I believe there are many people out there on "the street" who would help this type of person get used to society again by explaining the various little things to the one who doesn't or hasn't experienced it. Not to help support him, but to help guide him in his effort to learn how to be a citizen of this state.

I have done 13½ years in this institution. I was 15 years old when I came here in January, 1960. I was given a parole in January of this year, only to come back in February because I didn't report to work and I was running out of money faster than I was making it. I know what I did wrong the last time around and I believe that I can make it this next time around — but I am trying to get a program set up now within the institution to help other young men who will eventually have to go through the same thing. Perhaps some people may read this and wish to help in whatever way they can.

Rise In Crime

Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas should be commended for taking an unpopular stand when he charged the suspected murderer of a 67-year-old man with first-degree murder. If — and it is a big "if," of course — this man is found guilty of such dastardly crime, the law should exact the full penalty under the statutes, church groups and do-gooders notwithstanding.

The wave of terrorism and senseless crime now sweeping the country can be stemmed only when our courts put teeth into the law and stop pussy-footing with the hardened criminal.

A patrolman doing his duty is shot mercilessly near Lexington; a citizen out for a few hours of relaxation is equally and brutally mowed down. Shootings, stabblings, robberies are all on the increase.

What do we do with a cancerous cell? What do we do with a rattlesnake? We eradicate these evils and thus enhance the chances for the good.

Right on, Mr. Douglas, and help bring back the American way of life.

The state Highway Advisory Commission Friday was asked to consider changing the plan for a construction project designed to ease a traffic bottleneck in the Omaha area.

The request was made by Bill Green of the Douglas County Board of Commissioners in connection with planned construction work on the 84th Street tunnel near F Street.

The street has four lanes but narrows to two through a tunnel under a Union Pacific railroad embankment.
The bridge has long caused traffic problems and the state Highway Department has announced plans to build a pair of two-lane tunnels on either side of the present tunnel in an effort to ease the problem.

However, Green said another solution should be considered, involving tearing down of the embankment and construction of a bridge across 84th Street for the trains. The Highway Department would then be widened to four lanes with possible later expansion to six lanes, he told the commission.

State Engineer Thomas Doyle said he plans to meet next Tuesday with the county board to discuss the proposals.

Commission members and Doyle suggested Green and the county board contact the railroad to determine whether the bridge plan would be accepted by the Union Pacific.

No such acceptance of a bridge has yet been formally sought from the railroad, Green told the commission.

An overpass bridge for the trains could cost about $2.9 million while the proposed twin tunnels would cost approximately $3.3 million Green said.
The final design of the project has not yet been approved and commission members emphasized that any consideration of a train overpass-bridge should not be made until and unless the railroad agrees to consider such a plan.

Roadside Deathtrap Meet Set

Roadside deathtraps will be the main item of discussion at a meeting next Wednesday morning at the Public School Administration building here.

The 10 a.m. meeting is sponsored by the Nebraska Safety Council and will be open to anyone interested in learning about roadside hazards.

Principal speakers will be Ken Sieckmeyer, director of safety for the State Department of Roads, and Tom Carroll, executive director of the Nebraska Safety Council.

A film, "Boobytrap," produced by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, will be shown.

Carroll said that "nearly one-third of those killed in traffic accidents last year were in vehicles which ran off the road or were in collision with fixed objects in, on or near the road."

He said there is need for citizen understanding and support for a program to identify these roadside deathtraps and to work for their removal or for protection against them when removal is not possible.

At the meeting, Carroll said, volunteers will be recruited in each county to participate in an intensive surveillance and reporting campaign on local roadside hazards during September and October.

The meeting here will be the first in a series of seven scheduled throughout the state during August. The others will be at Scottsbluff on Aug. 7; North Platte, Aug. 9; Norfolk, Aug. 14; Grand Island, Aug. 16; McCook, Aug. 21; and Omaha, Aug. 23.

Gas Price Reductions Ordered

The Internal Revenue Service ordered several Lincoln service stations Thursday to roll back gasoline prices by one to four cents.

The action came after an IRS check showed they were in violation of the price freeze.

James Friel, economic stabilization manager for the IRS in Nebraska, said the complaints against the Lincoln stations were among about 250 price freeze complaints statewide, many against filling stations in Omaha.

About 150 of the complaints were about gasoline prices, but there were also cutbacks ordered on food and oil prices.

Until the price freeze ends Aug. 12, prices generally are to be kept at the level they were between June 1 and 8, Friel said.

UP Official Cites Demand For More Cars

Omaha (UPI) — Jack Bowen, general superintendent of transportation at Union Pacific said although the railroad is loading 600 cars a day to move wheat to market in Nebraska, Kansas and eastern Colorado, a demand still exists for 150 to 200 more cars a day.

Bowen said Union Pacific is using more than 11,000 cars to move grain.

The movement of grain sold to Russia, he said, is nearly complete and most of the grain has been shipped on schedule by the end of the fiscal export year June 30.

Bowen said during the first six months of the year Union Pacific moved 91,600 carloads of grain, compared to 52,900 the previous year — a 74% increase.

The Union Pacific superintendent said the railroad has purchased 1,000 covered hopper cars, expanded its locomotive fleet and utilized special trains to port areas to keep the grain moving.

Liability Doctrine Upheld By Court

By United Press International
A sharply divided State Supreme Court Friday rejected a move to extend the strict liability doctrine of a manufacturer for his products to include property damages as well as human injury.

But at the same time, with most of the dissent in the 4-3 vote centered on extending the doctrine rather than the end result, the court upheld a $32,635 judgment for a collapsed scaffolding on the basis of performances promises made in an advertising brochure.

The opportunity to extend the liability doctrine adopted last year in a suit against Ford Motor Co. came about in the form of an appeal of a suit filed against Matthews Co. Inc., by Hawkins Construction Co.

The majority side of the court conceded "logically this extension seems to be irresistible."

Awarded Judgment

In the case at bar, the Douglas County District Court awarded the judgment to Hawkins after scaffolding manufactured by Waco and leased from Matthews collapsed while the Swift and Co. plant in Omaha was being built.

Testimony, the court said, proved the scaffolding defective.

The case, which was only for property damages because no actual injuries resulted, was submitted to the jury on the doctrine of strict liability as well as on the basis of Nebraska's Uniform Commercial Code, specifically its warranty section.

The majority side of the Supreme Court opted for the use of the commercial code saying "we perceive no sound reason for extending the doctrine of strict tort liability."

Error Not Enough

On that basis, the majority said the district court was in error in submitting the case to the jury on the liability doctrine. But, said the majority, the error was not enough to void the case.

The issues to be settled were identical under both the doctrine and the code, the majority said, and the "jury's verdict would necessarily have been for the plaintiff under either theory of recovery."

The majority said the guiding

Anyone Can Learn To Play Autoharp

By ROBERT PETERSON

Sometime ago this column suggested that middle-agers learn to play a musical instrument — as a means of enlivening the years ahead and making the individual a more popular and interesting person.

Quite a few folks have written saying they've tried but feel unable to master the intricacies of fingering the chord structures required in playing such instruments as the piano, violin and guitar.

Here's a letter from Mrs. Laura Huffer who says, "Folks who think they can never learn to play an instrument should get acquainted with the autoharp. It resembles a small harp or zither and you play it on your lap. What makes it so easy to play is that it has chord bars."

"Instead of having to remember chords and proper fingering, you just press the appropriate chord bar with one hand, while strumming or plucking the strings with the other. Chord symbols are printed on most sheet music and these tell you which bar to press."

"The autoharp makes simply beautiful music and anyone can play it — even folks with very crippled hands. It's especially fine for folk music and for accompanying yourself when humming or singing."

Never having seen an autoharp, I stopped at a music store yesterday to have a look and came away impressed. I'm not very adept at music-making and play the piano with bumbling success despite years of practice. But with this in-factor was the warranty of the scaffolding as set forth in the Waco brochures distributed by Matthews.

Matthews, however, said there was no proof that any warranty was adopted. The court replied that Matthews did accept liability by making the Waco brochures available, which the firm agreed that it had.

"It (Matthews) supplied the advertising brochures in an effort to induce the plaintiff to lease the Waco scaffolding from it," the majority said. "The warranty was adopted and presented to the plaintiff in an effort to gain the plaintiff as a customer and we hold that Matthews Company, as a matter of law, is thus by its own admission bound by it."

Alimony Doubled

In another 4-3 decision, the Supreme Court doubled an alimony award in a divorce case in which a decree was granted under Nebraska's new no-fault divorce law.

The Dawes County District Court originally set alimony for Patsy Magruder at $416 per month.

She appealed claiming it was inadequate and Lyell Magruder Cross appealed against a temporary $750 per month alimony payment established pending the outcome of the appeal.

The majority decided the woman would receive $833 for a period of 10 years and two months and also awarded her $1,250 in attorney fees.

Termed Excessive

But Chief Justice Paul White, with the agreement of Judges Hale McCown and John Hewton, said the alimony "is grossly excessive" and further it is not in keeping with the concept of no-fault divorces on the basis of the evidence.

"It is abundantly apparent that the court, despite the statute, has determined to follow the traditional philosophy of fault," White said. "The Foundation of the court's decision is clearly a response and rejection of the fundamental philosophy of the new statute."

The basis used by the majority in determining the dollar amount was the fact the woman put her former husband through college.

genious instrument you just press the chord bar and strum — and sit back incredulous at having produced such lovely, melodious sounds.

Where can you get autoharps and how much do they cost? They can be ordered at most music stores, and the most popular size is the 12 chord model at less than $50.

British theatrical producer Joan Littlewood was quoted recently as saying, "Leisure as it now stands is a terrible thing. Many people don't know what to do when they're not working."

"What cities need are great public leisure centers — sort of Disneyland with a Ph.D. — which would offer games and amusements as well as discussion groups, classes in arts and crafts, a chance to engage in sports and the opportunity of new contacts."

What Miss Littlewood is proposing is already being done in day centers for older people in many cities. While I've never heard them described as "Disneylands with a Ph.D.," these centers in hundreds of cities offer "games and amusements as well as discussion groups, classes in arts and crafts, a chance to engage in sports and the opportunity of new contacts."

Board Ponders Museum Ideas

By LIANNE WETTERER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska State Historical Society Executive Board Friday kicked around ideas for the proposed new museum and approved 14 sites for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

Executive board members had previously authorized a feasibility study of a museum on the state-owned block just south of the Capitol between G and H Streets, and 15th and 16th Streets.

That study should be completed before the first of next year, according to Marvin Kivett, board secretary and director of the State Historical Society.

The museum, which would be called the Nebraska State Historical Heritage Center, should have at least 30% more space than the present museum and preferably 50 to 100% more, Kivett told the board.

"We have to build with an idea toward future expansion," he said.

With the 50-foot height limitation around the Capitol in mind, the board's main consideration was a two-story structure with basement for gift shops and cafeteria.

The state archives, library and Historical Society headquarters would remain in the present museum building at 15th and R, which has 43,000 square feet of floor space, Kivett said.

Although the proposed site is already owned by the state, he said "We may have to go to the Legislature in order to transfer the land to the society." The board should consider drafting a bill to submit to the '74 Legislature, he said.

The board also authorized Kivett to proceed with plans to acquire the Nehawka Flint Quarries as a potential historical site.

The quarries were an important source of flint for the Indians of eastern Nebraska, Kivett explained. Evidence has been found suggesting the quarries were used as much as 7,000 years ago and continued in use until the Europeans landed in America, he said.

In addition to the quarry pits, a number of Indian houses are on the site.

Sites approved for nomination to the National Register include:

—Astro Theater, southwest corner of 20th and Farnam Streets in Omaha. Unique combination of Moorish and Gothic architectural design.

—Haymarket Square, once Omaha's wholesale fruit market, comprises three blocks of street frontage. District turned into a specialty shopping development in 1926.

—Anheuser Busch Office Building, 1213 Jones in Omaha, built in 1888. Example of Victorian commercial architecture.

—Burlington Station, south side of 10 Street viaduct in Omaha, built in 1898. Original structure was of pure Greek order.

—Omaha National Bank Eagle, 17th and Farnam in Omaha. Large bronze eagle done in Saint Gaudens' studio in New York during 1890s.

—Frank Latenser Residence, 4014 N. Post Rd. in Omaha. Home approximates "Monticello," the home of Thomas Jefferson.

—Hotel Pawnee, in Pawnee City. Reportedly built about 1867. The 23-room structure may be Nebraska's oldest hotel.

—Aldrich House, in Elmwood. Home of Bess Streeter Aldrich (1881-1954), nationally famous novelist.

—Antich Potash Plant. During WWI five processing plants produced explosives and other products.

—Hall County Courthouse, in Grand Island, built 1901-04. Only Beau Arts style courthouse in Nebraska.

—Calumet Bluff, south of Gavins Point Dam near Knox-Cedar county line. Site of conference between five Yankton Sioux chief and Lewis and Clark Expedition members in late summer of 1804.

—Massacre Canyon Battlefield, three miles northeast of Trenton. Site of battle between 1,000 Sioux and 350 Pawnee. Considered last major battle between Indian tribes in the U.S.

—Oregon Trail Ruins, near eastbound Sutherland rest area on I-80. Although fairly common, many have been destroyed.

—Tecumseh Historic District. Examples of architectural styles popular during 1880s, including Simpson House, Medrick House, Appelget House, Johnson County Jail, Johnson County Courthouse, City Hall, Hopkins Hotel and Commercial Buildings.

Thirteen other sites in Omaha will be reconsidered before approved for nomination.

The executive board will conduct its full meeting Sept. 15.

MISS SIZEMORE . . . discusses concepts.

Concept Of History Must Be 'Broadened'

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Columbus didn't discover America.

And if American schoolchildren continue to be taught that he did, says Barbara Sizemore, it's the result of a much too narrow concept of history.

Miss Sizemore, speaking to about 200 Nebraska educators here Friday, said the concept is one which makes history, even in the so-called "melting pot" of America, the history of wealthy, white males of European background.

"We have to broaden it so it includes the history of everybody," she said, including the native Americans who were here long before Columbus "discovered" the shores.

Miss Sizemore was the main speaker at the second day in a two-day conference on emerging educational models and alter-

Ag Council Plans Meet On Harvest

The Nebraska Agricultural Council voted to sponsor an areawide meeting to deal with fall harvest problems at the organization's monthly meeting Friday.

The council was invited to set up a meeting on the transportation problems at harvest time with a promise that Claude Brinegar, secretary of the Department of Transportation would attend.

"He told Sen. Carl Curtis that he wants to hit the boxcar problem head-on so we ought to give him the chance," said Hans Jensen, council president.

The council expressed the request for the meeting by Curtis to include fuel problems at harvest time as well and decided to ask former Colorado governor John Love to attend.

Love was recently appointed by President Nixon to head national efforts to solve the energy crisis.

The council also asked legislators participating in the House-Senate conference committee on the farm bill to retain the cost of production escalator in the farm bill now under consideration by the joint committee.

In other action the council asked Jensen to attend a meeting in Kansas City designed to form a national Agricultural Council. Ray Ratliff of York was selected as an alternate in the event Jensen is unable to attend the meeting.

natives for school administrators.

The conference was sponsored by the Nebraska Council of School Administrators and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Teachers College.

Associate Secretary

A former Chicago school administrator, Miss Sizemore is now associate secretary of the American Association of School Administrators (AASA) in Washington, D. C.

She told the Nebraska educators that as school administrators they should help find ways to promote cultural pluralism without forcing groups who want to protect their identity to turn to separate and parallel societal institutions.

She noted that American Catholics and Jews established their own schools "to maintain a cultural heritage" that was unacceptable as a part of the American melting pot.

"There must be some other way to do this without separate schools to accommodate social differences," she suggested, "and without separate cultural communities."

To help do that, she said, educators should help find ways to change a system in which the "advantages go to those who already have."

"Never Neutral"
"Education is never neutral," she said, "it always teaches something."

And the values taught in American schools, she said, have been those of "male superiority, white European superiority and the superiority of people with money."

Dept. Of Roads Gets Approval For Lighting

The Nebraska Department of Roads has received approval from the Federal Highway Administration for construction of interchange lighting along Interstate 80 in the area of the Lincoln Municipal Airport Interchange, the Waverly Interchange and the Lincoln Air Park Interchange, all in Lancaster County.

A design study report is available for public inspection at the Department of Roads District Office, 302 Superior Street, Lincoln. The report and other project information, including the environmental impact study, are available upon request to the Department of Roads Main Office, P. O. Box 94759, Lincoln.

Reporter Has A Face-Tingling Experience

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Right away, I knew something was up. Called into the Star women's news digs, I balked instinctively, confronted by the staff — desks, arms-folded, and every face staring, suppressing expectant smirks.

I knew then I should turn round and walk determinedly away. But my curious soul betrayed me.

Would I? they asked.

I agreed, if only from wonderment.

The appointed day arrived and I dutifully appeared at the El Toro Barber Shop.

"What'll it be?" asked Bob Taylor.

"A facial," I replied, less audibly than usual.

Taylor reassured my now wavering soul.

"Twenty-five years ago, a lot of men used to get them," he said. "Facials and shaves both, when they weren't in such a hurry."

I learned too that if I wanted (I didn't), he would even give me a permanent wave. "We do everything there is that can be done to a man," Taylor said.

He relieved me further, disclosing that an average of eight men come in for facials each week.

We began the ritual.

It was decided I should get the "Gent-L-Man" facial, El Toro's newest at six weeks old.

"First, we analyze the skin," Taylor explained. He determined mine is oily, the case for most people, he said, reinforcing my growing self-consciousness.

Next, he applied Derm-O-Cleanse to remove any superficial grime my shower earlier had missed. The gel doesn't disturb the skin's tissue balance and helps relax the skin.

Then, Zing! My face talked to me as Taylor rubbed in protein astringent, which has a healing substance to repair minor skin breaks.

After that waker-upper, the former "Barber of the Year" removed dead tissue and skin from my face with Derm-O-Scrub, which contains finely ground pumice.

Between each step, Taylor applied (as he would throughout) a steaming hot towel, leaving only my nose bared. I was starting to relax.

Next came what I had dreaded.

The only thing I'd heard about facials was that you had to suffer and suffocate under a mud pack, a torture reputedly worse than being hanged by one's thumbs.

"That black mud stuff is kind of outdated," Taylor said. "We felt it wasn't quite as effective."

My only torment was having to hold completely still, not being able to talk for 15 minutes. Taylor carefully rubbed on a protein facial masque, which hardened into a paper-thin coating.

"I hope none gets in your hair," he said, "or we'll be pulling your eyebrows when we take it off." I had visions, said nothing.

The facial masque contracts the skin and "pulls out a lot of foreign particles," he explained.

He wasn't kidding. My entire face puckered.

"We're working mostly with the epidermis, the outer layer of skin," Taylor said. And although I don't need to worry yet, he dispelled the claim that facials eliminate wrinkles. He said he doesn't compete with the dermatologist.

I survived the 15 minutes. He began to peel off the masque.

"Hopefully, we've got a bunch of dead skin and dirt," Taylor said, stripping my face.

The masque off, my face tingled. Aaaaaah, another hot towel. I was beginning to like this.

Then Taylor began kneading my face with Mink Massage Cream, manipulating some "motor points" I didn't know were there.

"This helps stimulate the skin to replace its own oils," Taylor said.

He whipped out a sponge-ended hand vibrator, complementing his hand work, and the ultimate turn-on came when he vibrated my nose.

Mmmm, another hot towel, then a re-tingle with more astringent, "now used to actually close the pores," besides repairing minor skin irritations, he said.

Finally, he put on pH Mantle. "It moisturizes the skin and leaves a protective layer, effective in rejuvenating old worn-out skin," he said.

"Now we go back and check ourselves." He wiped a towel over my face, much like the finale, of a white-glove inspection, "to see if we've done our job properly."

Phew. No dirt.

Then, the last step in the hour-long process. This time, a cold towel. Shazah!

And he topped that off with a splash of shaving lotion. "We don't use powder; that would just fill up the pores again."

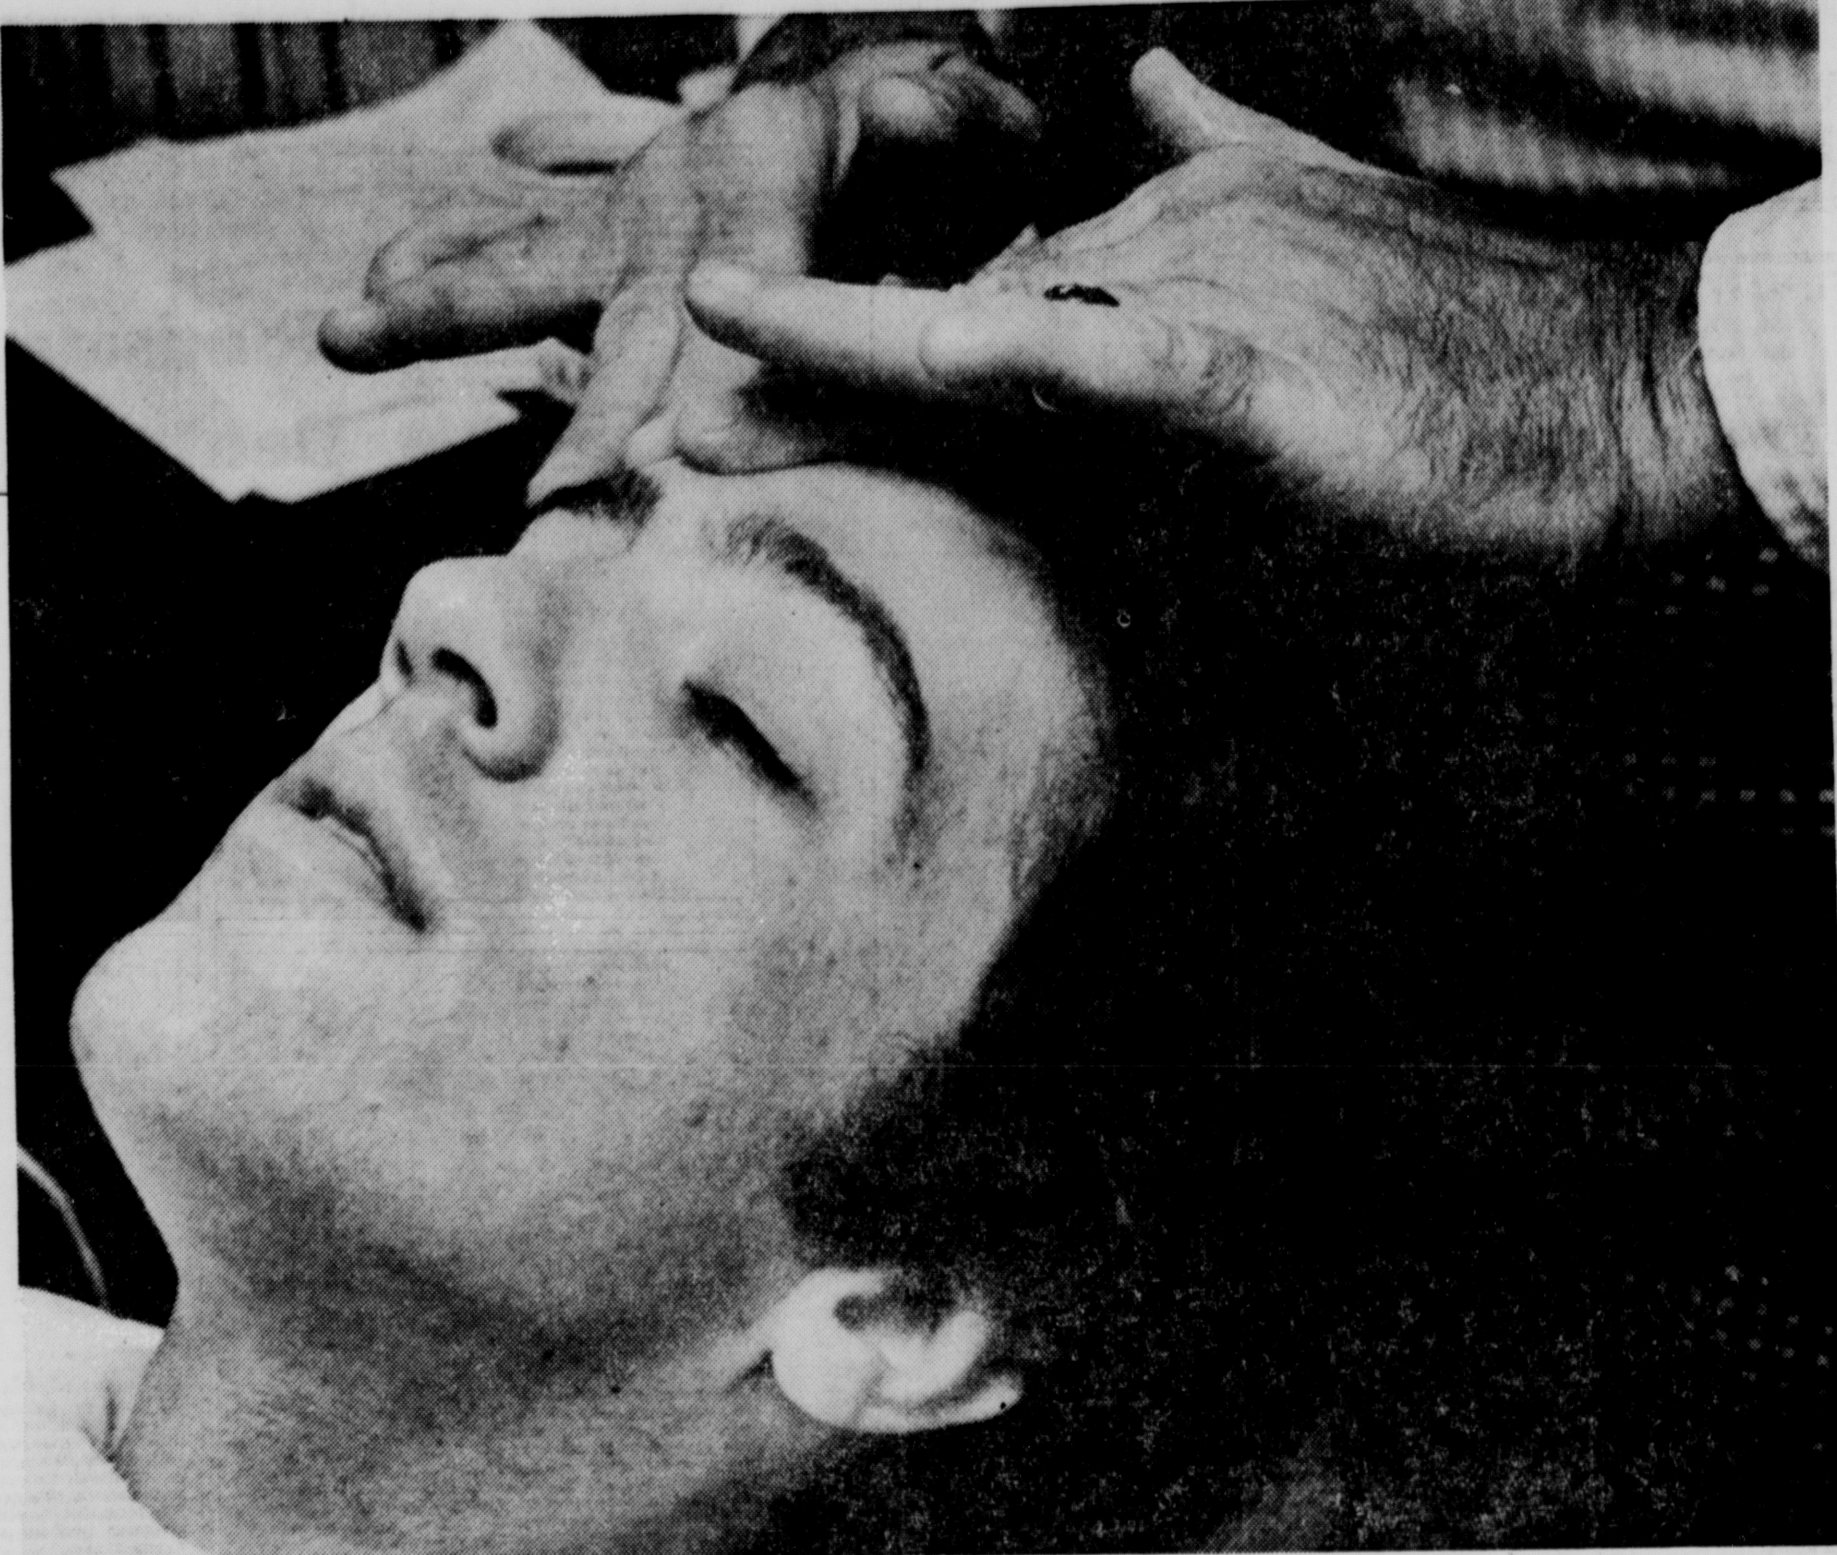

Taylor said that for men with blemishes or oily skin, he recommends a facial weekly. What about moustached men? No problem, he says, but the treatment's out for the bearded.

Besides the "Gent-L-Man," Taylor says he gives organic facials for people with acne, and a "restful" facial, which doesn't take as long and offers exactly what it suggests.

The feeling aside, a facial doesn't discriminate between men and women. It reduces fatty tissues in the skin, stimulates blood circulation, muscle tone and glandular activity, soothes nerves and softens the skin.

"The only minor pain it's good for would be a hangover," Taylor mused.

A menace to manhood? Naw. I don't look any different now because of it, and I came out of it feeling good — eyebrows and all.

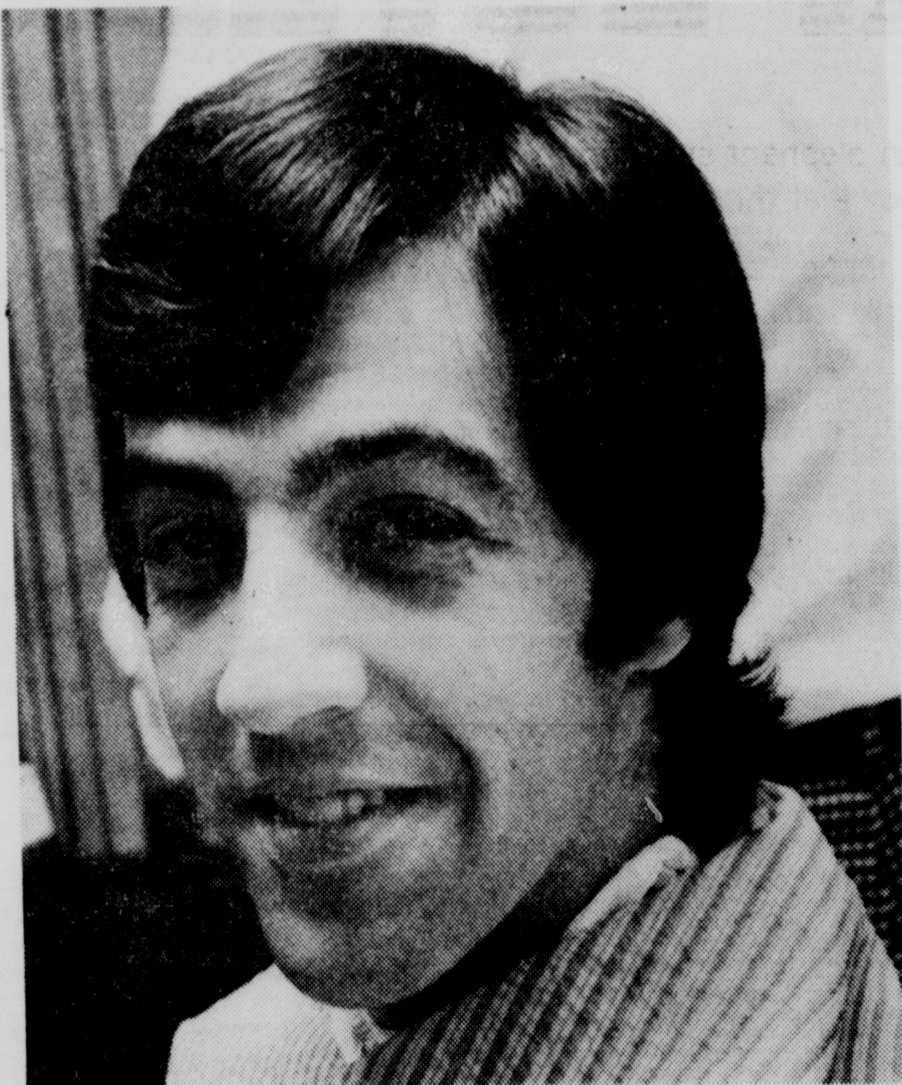

MMM . . . mmm good old face muscle massage. Taylor tries to hit key points on Holman's face.

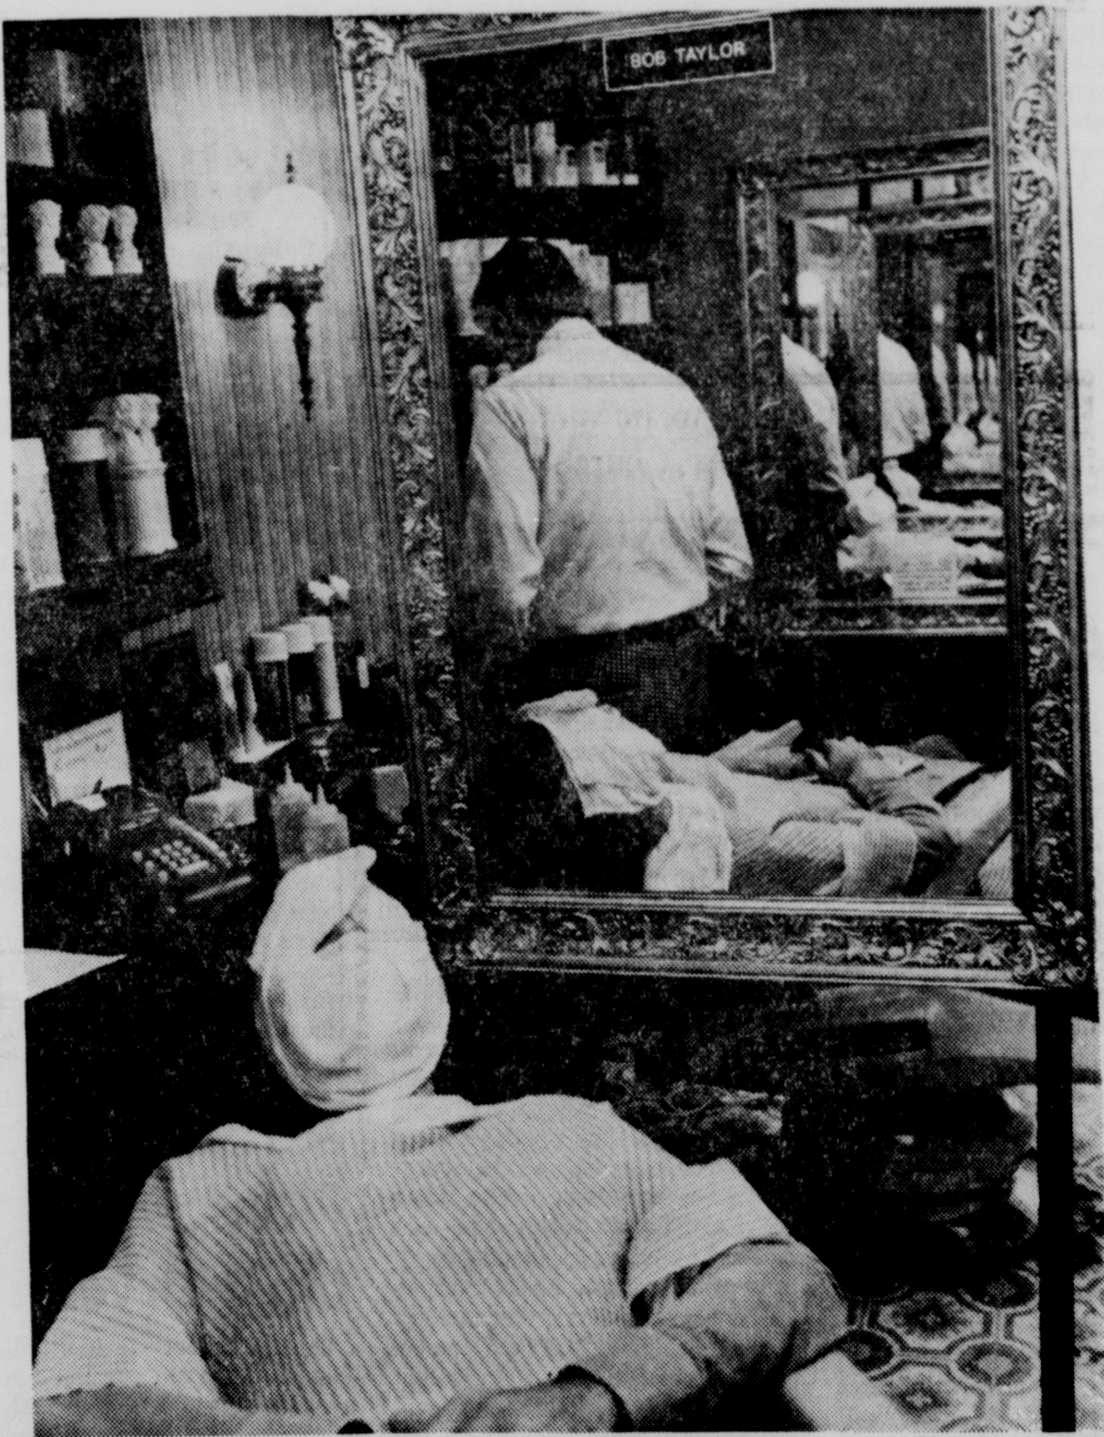

"This is one of the better pictures of me, don't you think?" said Dick Holman, who lies draped in a hot towel. The hot towel routine is used many times during a facial for cleansing purposes as well as relaxation.

"Some people can't stand to have their nose vibrated," according to Bob Taylor. A small grin shows this just "ain't so" for Holman. "He could have put the tremors to me all day long and my grin would have lasted just as long," the reporter said.

ALL DONE . . . Holman's face may be cleaner, but it looks just the same.

Reasons Women Marry Are Simple, Universal

By GRACIA SIEB
Star Staff Writer

It appears that young, middle-aged and old alike, the mature and immature, and the single, divorced and widowed are seeking through the marriage situation love, affection, understanding, companionship, economical and emotional security, respect, sex, and ultimately, happiness.

A variety of any of these ideals or a combination of several are usually given as reasons by those getting married. And who would better know the real reasons that people decide to marry than those who have been there?

For that reason, when the members of the Parents Without Partners group gathered this week their topic of discussion was "The Real Reasons Women Marry." Surprisingly enough the men outnumbered the women seven to five in attendance.

According to the group, the two main reasons — which seemed to balance one another in importance — were love and acting in accordance with mores of a family- or couple-oriented society.

The response of the group to Statistics Reported

Women's lib is having an effect on the types of instruments girls are taking up. Over the past year, women drummers have more than doubled and those playing trumpet have nearly tripled, says the American Music Conference. However, most women continue to play instruments traditionally considered "appropriate" such as piano (71.8%), organ (57.9%), clarinet (55.3%), flute (77.7%), and violin (54.9%).

Investments Are High

American families have more than $15 billion invested in musical instruments that they use at home, according to the American Music Conference. This figure does not include instruments owned by schools, religious institutions or professional bands and orchestras.

the term 'love' indicated that the emotion entails a comprehensive definition and often can camouflage the true reasons a person marries.

For example, love can and in most cases does represent mutual respect, admiration, degrees of compatibility and, physical attraction. However, blinded by the romantic connotation of the all-encompassing cure-all, love, and prompted almost totally by emotions rather than reality or common sense, couples all too often jump into marriage without realizing the impact of their actions.

Reality — what is it? The members of the discussion group agreed that reality is often misrepresented and the family structured society is perpetuated through some areas of the media.

The "deliriously happy" couples on television and in advertisements do not present a true picture of married life; the beautiful and happy bride may not live beautifully and happily every day, ever after; waxing the floor to a shine or using a brand name fabric softener may not always make your husband and family really appreciate you; wearing a well-known brand of slacks or using a provocative aftershave lotion simply may not keep your wife interested.

The group also observed that an evolution of sorts has taken place during the last ten years and the results include other alternatives besides marriage for a pregnant girl; the ability to more easily choose a career and move into an apartment to escape the family environment; and more open-minded attitudes concerning premarital sex.

One important factor touched on by the members was that of maturity, maturity which enables a person to recognize the real reason he or she marries.

In many cases, marriage unrealistically represents an independence or freedom from parents and required duties at home, when actually a married person assumes more responsibility for herself along with one or two others.

What may be disguised as love could be sexual attraction alone or a deep need for companionship.

Other reasons presented by the group included the desire to have children, the need to marry someone economically stable or promising and a preoccupation with someone representing a father image.

Not All GI's Cheat

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both 21. We've been married for nearly two years and we have one child. He joined the service out of fear of being drafted and now he's in Germany.

My question: Why do men (even married men) tell me I shouldn't think my husband is sitting in the barracks every night just thinking of me? They say he is only human and he is out for everything he can get over there. They say all the guys in the service cheat on their wives.

Abby, this upsets me terribly. Some of these men don't even know my husband so how can they pass judgment on him that way?

TRUE BLUE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: They can't. They are trying to suggest that if you want to cheat on your husband, you would be justified. Don't believe them. There are plenty of "true blue" men in the service, and your husband could be one of them.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

THE UNEXPECTED

What if you looked out your window and saw an elephant standing in your back yard? Would you think you'd been transported to Africa—or that the zoo had lost a boarder?

Situations just as bizarre and unexpected can happen anywhere, anytime, to anyone. When they happen to you, are you able to cope with them?

Merely attending church isn't going to solve all your problems. But it will help build a base that teaches you how to take the unexpected in stride. And life, when you get down to it, is in itself unexpected.

Start going to church next Sunday.

Action Refused 2 Army Soldiers

... By Judge Urbom

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Two Lincoln soldiers who have said they do not want to return to their German Army base because of drug abuse there Friday were refused court action that would have barred the Army from sending them back to Germany.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom ruled that the U.S. District Court had no jurisdiction on the suit filed by Randall L. Pittman and Allen C. Barber Jr.

In handwritten statements in support of their request for the court action the two soldiers contended that their lives would be in danger if they were returned to Germany.

"Now that I have revealed the widespread drug problem and drug traffic among U.S. soldiers overseas... I... know for a fact that there are a lot of soldiers who are just waiting for a chance to get me," Barber wrote.

Widely Publicized
"I have been widely publicized not only here, in the United States, but also in Germany in the Star's and Stripes' newspaper, radio and TV," Barber said.

Aronson Quits Job For UNL

John E. Aronson has resigned as director of admissions at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and will be recommended to the Board of Regents for appointment as assistant to the Chancellor at the University's Medical Center in Omaha.

Aronson would be in charge of student services at the Medical Center.

Gerald Bowker, director of academic services at UNL, said "the institution has been fortunate to have had a person of Aronson's qualifications on the staff for the past 11 years."

"We are sure that he will continue to provide leadership to the University in his new position," Bowker said.

The University is seeking a new director of admissions.

Flute Is Stolen

Katsuhiko Waldon of 1345 R reported to police that someone entered his third-floor apartment through an unlocked door and removed a silver French flute and a white bath towel, for a total loss of about $200. The incident occurred between Monday and Thursday morning, Waldon said.

Barber said he had received a letter from a friend on the base in Germany who said that everyone was talking about him. He also said he had talked to a woman who had told him that her son had his "neck cut open" when he had done what Barber did.

In his handwritten statement, Pittman said, "We brought a lot of pressure down on a lot of people there and caused a lot of headaches and extra work and a lot of people to do a lot of explaining."

"I am certain we will be in great danger from people who are on drugs and will be greatly harassed by NCO's and will be constantly laughed at," Pittman wrote.

As Barber also did, Pittman quoted a young soldier who was recently discharged from the Army in connection with an incident involving drugs as saying the two would definitely be in danger if they returned to Germany.

Different Base
In a story Friday the Associated Press quoted an Army spokesman as saying that Pittman and Barber would be returned to Germany, but to a different base than the one they had been assigned to.

The story quotes the spokesman as saying the two soldiers would be returned "as soon as we can get them on a transatlantic plane."

Lincoln attorney John Stevens Berry, counsel for the two soldiers said Friday that he had advised them to follow the "proper legal channels" rather than risking a court martial by refusing to return to Germany.

Berry said that he would decide in the "next day or two," what the next step would be in the two soldiers' battle to avoid being returned to Germany.

Burglary Probed

Lincoln police Friday were investigating a burglary at the Gene E. Moody home at 3930 So. 42nd in which over $200 worth of jewelry was taken. The Moody's said the burglary occurred while they were on vacation. Entrance was gained by breaking a basement window.

Chairs Are Stolen

Lincoln police Friday were investigating the thefts of eight lawn chairs from the patios of apartments at 4401 So. 27th. The lawn chairs had a total value of slightly over $100.

Sterilization Halted

Montgomery, Ala. (UPI) — The Alabama department of mental health agreed to halt the sterilization of mentally retarded youths at a state hospital until a court hearing is held.

CALLAWAY... discusses new policy.

Army Eases Rules To Avoid Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unable to recruit enough volunteers, the Army Friday eased its standards to avert a serious manpower shortage.

Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway announced a new program to permit more non-high school graduates to enlist in the Army this year.

Thus, the new Army secretary backed away from a previous policy which concentrated on enlisting at least 70 per cent high school graduates on grounds they are more reliable than dropouts and less likely to be disciplinary problems.

"We are falling short in quantity some 2,000 men a month," Callaway told his first news conference since becoming secretary.

"It's not serious yet, but this can't continue very long without getting serious."

The Army is the only service which has failed to meet its monthly recruiting objectives ever since the government stopped drafting young men last December.

At one point, Callaway acknowledged that "you've got to have tradeoffs between quality and quantity."

But in almost the next breath he asserted that "my bias has been toward quality" and said that is still the Army's objective.

The new approach will permit nonhigh school graduates "to prove themselves by their performance in training" rather than emphasizing entrance requirements before going to basic training.

Callaway said a recently developed battery of written tests prepared by the Army

Research Institute will measure aptitude for training.

"The test will provide a more accurate measure of the man's aptitude for today's Army," Callaway said.

Until now, the main emphasis has been on intelligence-measuring qualification tests.

"Since the quality of a man is realistically tested by his over-all performance in his training unit," Callaway said, "the new screening procedure in these units will measure the volunteer's motivation and self discipline in the Army environment."

Men who indicate by lack of achievement or poor behavior that they are unsuited will be honorably discharged before completing six months of service.

Under questioning, Callaway acknowledged that nonhigh school graduate recruits cause most of the Army's drug and disciplinary problems, but he contended that "experience shows that four out of five nonhigh school graduates become good soldiers."

He denied that the easing of standards would move the Army toward becoming predominantly black, which has been forecast by some critics of the all-volunteer concept.

"I see nothing I am doing in that direction," Callaway said. Blacks now comprise about 20 per cent of the Army.

He noted that the officer corps is virtually all college trained and said that the over-all Army will be broadly based and "will be one the country can trust."

Request For Building Sent To Washington

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A University of Nebraska request for a building at the Hiram Scott College campus in Scottsbluff, Neb., has been forwarded to Washington officials for a final decision, a federal official said Friday.

But "some of the details have not yet been worked out for the transfer," said Harry Kellman, a project officers with the regional federal Office of Education.

Kellman refused to specify what those "details" were. "I'm not at liberty to discuss the details at this time," he said.

The request involves the library science building on the campus. The building was built with federal funds and ownership reverted to the federal government when the campus closed several years ago due to financial problems.

The request by the University of Nebraska for the building is part of a proposed eventual takeover of the campus by NU.

"We've been expecting for some time to hear something final on this," said Kellman, "but there are some little problems we haven't solved yet."

He declined to be more specific about the matter.

"Basically, we're trying to get the building to the university," he said, "but I don't know when we'll have a final decision."

There has been "nothing" new since the request was forwarded to Washington, Kellman said.

In Lincoln, Howard Neville, NU vice-chancellor for administration, confirmed that "we're still waiting. We haven't heard anything yet. I keep hearing that it'll be in a few days, but we're still looking for a decision."

Sen. Jackson Will Speak To Labor Union

Omaha (AP) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., will be in Omaha Sept. 24 to speak at the state convention of the Nebraska AFL-CIO, it was announced Friday.

Jackson is considered a possible contender for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

Jackson has been keeping in touch with Nebraska supporters and already has formed the nucleus of a 1976 organization in the state.

The Omaha visit will give Jackson a running start on Nebraska's next presidential primary. He campaigned in the state in 1972 before withdrawing because of financial problems. He later re-entered the campaign.

Jackson, a man popular with labor, spoke at the 1972 AFL-CIO convention at North Platte.

Damage Investigated
Police Thursday were investigating property damage to two open houses being remodeled. Dennis D. McCulley of 8540 Kathy Lane reported that someone broke off a pillar of the front porch at 409 No. 25th and knocked several holes in the inside hallway of a residence at 405 No. 25th. Damage was estimated at $200.

Game Unit To Join In Lake Study

By United Press International
The State Game and Parks Commission voted Friday to participate in a study of Keith County to the extent of covering the cost of work to be used later in developing a master plan for Lake McConaughy.

Subject to negotiation once Keith County selects a consulting firm, the commission decided to put up approximately one-third of the total cost of the county-wide comprehensive planning study.

Del Whitley of the commission staff said the county is scheduled to interview about 12 consulting firms in the near future.

Whitley said the reason the state should get involved in the county study and thus establish the foundation for the lake plan is because of the development pace in the area surrounding the lake.

"Things are now happening rather rapidly out there," he said, noting that the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds has already subdivided its land on the lake for sale purposes.

"Because of this development," Whitley said, "we have to take steps to protect the quality of the reservoir."

As to the importance of a master plan for the lake, Whitley said "we have nothing else like it in Nebraska," referring to the lake.

The study, in particular the portion on the reservoir, would cover such things as pollution, hunting, fishing and state personnel required to protect the area as well as identification of historic sites, and sites for trailer villages and concessions.

In other business, the commission granted two awards for "outstanding contributions" to the acres for wildlife program in 1972.

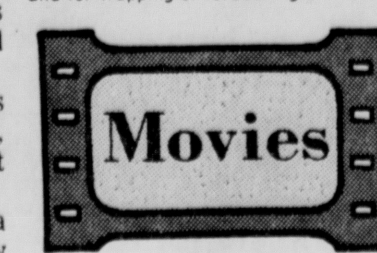

The awards went to Norman E. Kopecky, an employee at the Fontenelle Forest Nature Center, as well as to the center itself.

Kopecky, prior to joining the center staff, served as president and vice president of the University of Nebraska Lincoln campus wildlife club and obtained 44 enrollments for a total of 225 acres in the wildlife habitat preservation program.

After joining the staff, the commission said he was instrumental in enrolling the nature center's 1,320 acre tract in the program.

The commission also: —Approved the acquisition of 1.2 acres of federal surplus land formerly used as an aviation radar site near Hastings as an addition to an existing wildlife area. —Increased the cost estimate for park development at Milligan and decided to put up $3,000 of the estimated $12,000 project from state funds. Previously, the city was only to receive half of the cost from the federal land and water conservation fund with no help from the state. —Decided to hold a public hearing Aug. 17 prior to setting the 1973 seasons for up-land game, wild turkey, crow, waterfowl and for trapping of furbearing animals.

Spooks Aid Others

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Many people have done many things in the name of charity, but few have allowed themselves to be driven to the brink of madness or been knocked down and trampled by children fleeing for their lives.

Such was the case with Mrs. Pat Vondra, 2941 Constable, who underwent various forms of torture herself to help put on a Spookarama for Muscular Dystrophy.

Taking little credit herself, Mrs. Vondra said the children in the neighborhood "worked like dogs" making their own costumes, designing the program and applying their own makeup to make the Spookarama a success.

The group took in over $58 for their day-long effort and at 15 cents a kid and three cents for a glass of Kool-Aid that's a lot of liquid and bodies to have flowing through your house.

Fifty eight dollars is a new record for Lincoln Spookaramas and the Citizens State Bank made out a cashier's check at no charge for their effort.

The children were led in groups of four or five down into the darkened basement where they were eerily beckoned into the chamber of horrors by a black robed witch, Mrs. Claudia Domont.

From that point, the victims were guided through a tunnel where they were grabbed at by hands groping in the darkness only to emerge in the face of a fierce animal, played by a very small boy in a very large fur coat.

The children screamed with delight and their fright was intensified by a tape recording of clanking chains, moans, groans and other scary sounds made by Mrs. Vondra and two accomplices.

The children were directed onward to undergo further horrors including a vampire in a coffin with a stake in his chest, a dead body, crying captured children, peeled grapes as eyeballs and a bowl of gooey spaghetti as a brain.

Just as the children would get to the stairway, a shrieking ghoul would leap out of a doorway and send them squealing and tumbling over one another up the stairs to safety.

Some of the children were so frightened they came back four or five times.

Mrs. Vondra who came to the United States from England in 1962 said she was amazed at the cooperation and participation, adding, "I wish we could do this at home."

But she summed the day up best while counting the money when she said, "Just think. Maybe this will help some little child to walk."

Taxpayers May Get Break On County Levy

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

On the basis of tentative figures, Lancaster County taxpayers may look forward to a tax break in 1974 due to a substantial drop in the county mill levy.

With the salary issue for county employees still unsettled, Lancaster County commissioners Friday night estimated the total county mill levy to be about 10.0 mills as compared to 11.694 last year.

The estimate was based on figures available Friday as prepared by County Clerk Carl Hartman.

Part of the drop was due to transferring $700,000 in inheritance tax funds to the general fund which saved about 1.25 mills.

In going over budget requests of department heads Friday night, the commissioners made no cuts pending the decision on salaries but indicated that there could be a change in the budget of the county assessor depending upon their decision on how the reappraisal should be updated.

Declining to publicly disclose her plan until after she had an opportunity to discuss it with the other two board members, new Commissioner Jan Gauger said that she has a recommendation to make in regard to updating the reappraisal.

With the exception of an additional $1,200 in the adult probation department budget to allow for over-time of two individuals during jury terms and the combining of the Register of Deeds and Photo-Stat Machine departments with no changes in budget, the board made no changes in departmental requests.

However, the actual amount of county funds for Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) is still not known nor the dollar-amount request of the Women In Community Service (WICS) nor the amount to be included for the Drug Commission.

Under the new category of community development, the commissioners included the following in the commissioners' miscellaneous fund:

Southeast Health and Planning Council, $10,000; Youth Service, $15,000; Commission of Aging, $20,000 and social services planning, $25,000.

The board tentatively included $290,000 for LOMR but indicated that depending upon state and federal funding, this could amount to $410,000.

According to preliminary figures available, the total general fund budget would be about $5.5 million with a property tax requirement of $1.5 million.

This compares with the 1972-73 general fund budget of $4.1

million of which $1.8 had to be raised by taxation.

The commissioners said they did not know yet Friday how much difference would result in the total budget if a flat 6.5% cost-of-living increase is given to all employees instead of the proposed salary increases requested by department heads.

Mrs. Gauger has suggested that the county board ask officials to revise the salary requests to a straight 6.5% cost-of-living raise for all county employees until completion of a personnel study and implementation of the personnel system.

This could amount to a larger increase than requested for some employees but a substantially lower one for others. Departmental requested increases varied from about 4.5% to between 12 and 14%.

However, Commissioner Kenneth Bourne said he feels that the salary increases proposed by department heads should be approved this year with no changes until after the personnel system is actually set up.

Board Chairman Robert Colin, who had said Thursday following a meeting with county officials and department heads that he would decide Friday, said he wanted the weekend to consider his decision.

However, Colin said he didn't think any of the salary increases including those of County Attorney Paul Douglas for his deputies were out of line.

Officials and department heads told the board Thursday they were willing to cooperate in putting a personnel system into effect but opposed the flat percentage increase and rejection of departmental recommendations this year.

Lincoln Man Hurt In Crash

A 36-year-old man was in "satisfactory" condition at Veterans Hospital Friday night after the car he was driving was in collision with another auto at 33rd & D Friday morning, police said.

Alton H. Storey, no address given, was northbound on 33rd when the collision occurred with an auto westbound on D driven by Judith E. Schutz, 38, of 8231 Henry, according to police reports.

Mrs. Schutz and her daughter Amy R. Schutz, 4, were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Community Health Center.

Airport Grant Set For Lincoln

An airport development grant of $979,500 will go to the Lincoln Airport Authority, according to an announcement from Sen. Roman Hruska's office.

The purpose of the grant, provided by the Federal Aviation Administration, is to expand terminal apron and add landscaping to the access road at the Municipal Airport, the announcement declared.

Fire Damage To Automobile 'Considerable'

A fire Friday night caused "considerable" damage to a car owned by Richard A. Otto of 5650 M, according to Fire Dept. Capt. Wyatt Gage.

Gage said Otto reported smelling a "wood burning" odor while driving to his house, but parked and went inside. About 15 minutes later, "someone called his attention to smoke coming out of his car," Gage said.

The fire, apparently caused by an electrical short, started in the vicinity of the radio, Gage said. The blaze damaged the dash, windshield and interior of the car.

Oklahoma Prison Fired; Hostages Taken

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Inmates rioted at the state prison here Friday, taking hostages and setting fire to more than a dozen buildings, authorities said. One inmate was stabbed to death and other inmates and guards were injured.

Prison physician Dr. Rafael Cott said one inmate died of stab wounds he said were apparently inflicted by other inmates. He said three other inmates were in critical condition. Two guards were stabbed during the takeover.

The revolt began in mid-afternoon when six armed inmates stabbed the two guards and took hostages, officials said. But by Friday night Gov. David Hall said "approximately 500 to 800 men comprise the prison rioters."

Cott said he had treated 12 inmates for a variety of injuries during the day but had not been allowed to examine the hostages.

One of the hostages, Deputy Warden Sam Johnston, telephoned Warden Park Anderson about an hour after being seized and said, "I'm all right. They're treating me well."

Gunfire crackled inside the prison walls Friday night when guards fired on a group of inmates seen carrying cans across a yard near the burning buildings, officials said.

One inmate was wounded, apparently in that volley, with a bullet in the stomach and one in the right arm, officials said. He was taken to a hospital after other prisoners carried him to an inner perimeter gate.

A prison guard explained the shooting incident, saying prison officials feared the inmates carried flammable liquids in the cans.

The trouble began as the inmates attacked Lt. Thomas

Payne and Capt. C.C. Smith, near the prison mess hall in the afternoon, officials said.

Smith and Payne were hospitalized with knife wounds. Six inmates armed with knives then seized hostages and called for support from other prisoners, officials said.

"Come on this is a revolution," one of the inmates shouted on the public address system which had been seized. "In the name of Allah, join us, please join us show solidarity. Come together, black or white. Black or white are all convicts. Come join us."

About 1,750 inmates populate the prison. Officials said about 900 prisoners were locked in their cells.

Hall said he understood the inmates wished to speak with him. He said, however, "unfortunately, I will not meet with inmates until the hostages are released and all inmates are returned to their cells. I will personally meet with representatives of the inmates within 24 hours after they return to their cells and release the hostages."

As Hall spoke, smoke continued to roll from the prison as more than a dozen buildings blazed. At one time, the column of smoke could be seen 40 miles from the prison.

Prison guard Doyle Benham said at least 12 buildings, including the prison hospital, mess hall, a canning factory and facilities for producing paint, furniture and license plates were burning.

Firefighters could reach only some portions of certain buildings near the perimeter of the prison. Inmates controlled the rest of the area.

Airport Grant Set For Lincoln

An airport development grant of $979,500 will go to the Lincoln Airport Authority, according to an announcement from Sen. Roman Hruska's office.

The purpose of the grant, provided by the Federal Aviation Administration, is to expand terminal apron and add landscaping to the access road at the Municipal Airport, the announcement declared.

Fire Damage To Automobile 'Considerable'

A fire Friday night caused "considerable" damage to a car owned by Richard A. Otto of 5650 M, according to Fire Dept. Capt. Wyatt Gage.

Gage said Otto reported smelling a "wood burning" odor while driving to his house, but parked and went inside. About 15 minutes later, "someone called his attention to smoke coming out of his car," Gage said.

UNO, UNL Home Ec Departments Merged

A merger which has been under discussion since the University of Nebraska and Omaha University were united, was approved at the last meeting of the Board of Regents.

The Department of Home Economics at the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) is now a part of the College of Home Economics at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL).

The merger "will strengthen the total offering of home economics at the University," according to Dr. Hazel Anthony, dean of the College of Home Economics at UNL.

UNO and UNL students will now be able to take courses on either campus. Beginning classes in all subject areas will be offered on both campuses.

Faculty at UNO will be members of the faculty of the College of Home Economics and will work under the present department chairpersons in Lincoln. The merger will give both faculties the opportunity for closer association, Dr. Anthony said. UNO faculty will attend faculty meetings at the College of Home Economics.

Dr. Mary Hall, associate professor and acting chairman of the Department of Home Economics at UNO, will now be an associate dean of the UNL College of Home Economics. Dr. Hall had previously served on the UNL faculty in the Department of Textiles, Clothing and Design, as well as teaching at St. Mary's College in Omaha and working with the Douglas County Extension office. She received her Ph.D. in adult and continuing education from UNL in May.

Faculty from the UNL departments of food and nutrition, human development and the family, and education and family resources had taught on the UNO campus before the merger. Dr. Anthony said the exchange will continue.

UNO has approximately 170 home economics majors, who will now be able to major in areas previously offered only at

UNL. And UNL home economics majors will be able to transfer to UNO to major in areas not offered in Lincoln.

Four majors will be available at UNO. These are community nutrition, community services, interior design and vocational teacher certification for home economics related occupations. The community courses are more appropriate for Omaha's urban setting, Dr. Anthony said.

New Feed Plant Set For Columbus

Columbus (AP) — A new Allied Mills Feed Plant will be constructed at Columbus. Roy E. Folck Jr., president and chairman of the board of the Chicago based company, informed the Columbus Chamber of Commerce by letter that the plant will be built on a 44-acre site near Columbus. The plant will produce a full line of bagged and bulk feeds and will have a bag and bulk mineral production unit, he said. Construction is expected to start late this summer with completion in the summer of 1974.

Hearing Slated For School Librarian

Gering (AP) — Alleged violations of standards and professional ethics by a Minatare school librarian will be investigated by the Nebraska Professional Practices Commission at a hearing Wednesday. The commission will investigate charges filed by the Minatare Board of Education against Sharon Girty, a librarian who had been employed by the school system for one year. Minatare school superintendent Murray R. Collins said the board filed the complaint after the librarian signed a contract with another school board while under contract with the Minatare board.

Craig Taken Into Custody

Blair (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has taken into custody a Blair man who allegedly fled to avoid prosecution on a habitual criminal charge. Floyd Craig, 44, was arrested at Phoenix where he had been living under another name, authorities said. According to Washington County Sheriff Bert Spanton, Craig had been convicted of two counts of stealing and killing a beef animal and had been released on $1,500 bond.

Big Blue NRD Okays Higher Budget

Beatrice (UPI) — In a public hearing the board of directors of the Lower Big Blue Natural Resource District approved a $1,083,000 operating budget for fiscal 1974. No objections were voiced at the meeting and the approved budget showed an increase of some $300,000 over fiscal 1973's budget of $780,790. Some 93% of the budget will go for the purchase of right-of-way for 16 flood control dams and for construction of six water-retarding structures. Some $186,000 will be raised through local revenue.

Pokorny Fatal Shooting Declared Justifiable

Bellevue (AP) — The fatal shooting of Edward J. Pokorny Jr. on July 19 has been declared "justifiable homicide" by Sarpy County Attorney Dixon Adams. Adams said there would be no further investigation. Pokorny, 25, was shot and killed by a deputy who was responding to a call for help from Pokorny's wife at their home.

Air Patrol Now Has Flying Nun

Scribner (AP) — Nebraska's Civil Air Patrol has a flying nun. Sister Ann Marie, known as Sam to her fellow CAP cadets, is a captain in the CAP. She was elected camp commander for a recent two week flight training course at Scribner Air Force Base.

"Sister Sam" teaches physics and chemistry at an Omaha girls' school. She became interested in the CAP while teaching a radiological defense course at CAP cadets.

It was during a search and rescue mission that she decided to learn to fly. The pilot asked her if she thought she could bring their plane down if something happened to him. "I knew I could bring it down," she relates. "But if I was going to bring it down in one piece, I'd better learn to fly."

Sister Ann Marie is 53.

She puts in a full day that begins in nearby Fremont, where women cadets are quartered. She drives herself and three other girls to the base each morning; that's when she goes to work.

Her first duty is to march the CAP unit to the mess hall for breakfast.

The day is spent studying, flying and monitoring the flight radio.

There is a two hour ground school in the evening.

But Capt. Sam is most popular from 3 p.m. until 5 p.m., when the cadets get leisure time. Along with flying, she plays a good folk guitar. Her first adaptation for the cadets began:

"We shall learn to fly . . .

Smallest Deputy Getting Training

Grand Island, (AP) — What may be the smallest deputy in Nebraska is attending the Nebraska Law Enforcement training center here.

In addition to being small, there's another important difference — the deputy is married to a sheriff.

Mrs. Rosie Trujillo, has been working for two years as deputy sheriff in Keith County at Ogallala under her husband, Luis, who has been sheriff since June of 1969.

The four-foot, 11-inch deputy believes there are "lots of opportunities for women in law enforcement."

"There are some things a woman can't do as well as a man, such as arresting a drunk," she says. "I don't think women should try to take over a man's job, but studies have proven that in some cases, such as rape, a woman is able to do a much better investigation."

The mother of four children says that her duties as a deputy get her involved in almost every phase of law enforcement.

She explains: "I do work within the office which consists of paper work and filing, but I also serve warrants, subpoenas and make arrests. I think my most important role is to serve as a matron for women prisoners."

"I am a legally bonded deputy and I can do anything that any other deputy can. I've been in on drug raids and murder cases and just about everything," she says.

Mrs. Trujillo enrolled in the law enforcement training center because she says she realizes that education is very important.

"I feel that if you're going into law enforcement seriously you should have the training to go along with it," she says. "I know that experience is the best teacher, but I just want to have the education behind me so I can do a better job."

The diminutive deputy says she carries a weapon, but has never had to use it.

Looking to the future, Mrs. Trujillo says she enjoys her work, but "I have no intention of ever running for sheriff," she adds.

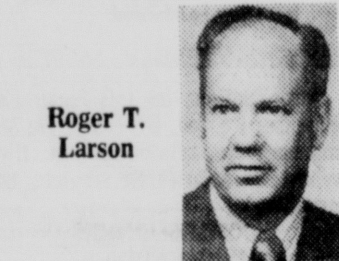

Parents Who Expect Too Much Warned

Aurora — Parents who expect too much of their children as young athletes may be endangering their future prospects in sports, the chairman of the Nebraska Medical Association's Sub-Committee on Athletic Injuries says.

He is Dr. John E. Murphy, an Aurora physician. The 39-year-old doctor has been a team physician for the schools of Hamilton County for nine years.

Year-around conditioning is the best way to escape athletic injuries, Dr. Murphy believes. He said that a program of con-

Organization Elects Larson As President

Roger T. Larson was elected president of Governmental Research Institute at that organization's annual meeting Friday noon.

Other officers are Fern H. Orme, vice president and Max Meyer, secretary-treasurer.

Elected to the board were Fred Rickers, James P. Sheldon, Jan Gauger and Lee Liggett.

Hold-over board members include Max Meyer, Joe R. Seacrest, Helen Boosalis, Lloyd J. Marti, George E. Howard, Dean Tiemann and L. E. Liebers.

ditioning consists of these elements: maintaining good muscle tone; maintaining steady weight with allowances for growth; maintenance of endurance capability; and strength development.

"Parents should recognize that some children will never be competitive at athletics," Dr. Murphy warns. "But even these youngsters can learn to enjoy athletics in other ways — as spectators, team assistants, trainers, and by participation in non-competitive athletics."

"Those who obviously do not have the ability should not be pushed. Many youngsters are late bloomers as athletes. Competition too early may ruin their possibilities for later accomplishment."

Dr. Murphy said that both psychological and physical damage to the youngster can result from too early over-competition. He said a child of eight who is continually mastered at a sport by a child of twelve may never respond to more fair competition. A child who is small for his age may be injured or lose all faith in his ability if continually thrown into competition against youngsters who are bigger and stronger, he added.

"Many youngsters can compete successfully in high school or junior high athletics yet will never be able to compete in college or university athletics," Murphy said.

"Parents should encourage youngsters. But they should not be unfair to them by pushing them into competition for which they are not physically or psychologically fitted. In situations where they do, it could lead to physical and psychological injuries which will be difficult to overcome."

Thone Opposes Salary Raises

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., served notice Friday he will do his best to prevent any pay raises for members of Congress.

In his weekly newsletter, Thone warned, however, that "unless a nationwide taxpayer revolt can be organized, members of Congress will get another pay raise by the behind-your-back method."

He said he will "forever and ever" resist any congressional raises "by any method that is not direct, straightforward and on the record."

In sketching the background for the last raise given the lawmakers, Thone said the 1967 Congress passed a law with "a tricky means" of hiking salaries.

That law provides that every four years a commission on executive, legislative and judicial salaries is to be named, with some members appointed by the President, some by the chief justice and other by the House and Senate majority leaders.

The committee makes its recommendations to the President, who changes them as he sees fit and sends them to Congress. If Congress does not act for 30 days, the raises go into effect automatically.

This method was used in 1969,

Tiemann Urges Start On Pipeline

Bellevue, Wash. (AP) — Federal Highway Administrator Norbert T. Tiemann says construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline should begin "without further delay."

The former Nebraska governor said while Americans are being asked to cut energy consumption by 5 per cent, "10 billion barrels of known oil deposits on Alaska's North Slope remains hostage to a prolonged debate over where and how the transmission pipeline should be constructed."

"While delay in pipeline progress probably has not been a factor in the current U.S. gasoline shortage, continuing postponement in the start of construction will unquestionably diminish the petroleum industry's ability to meet our nation's growing needs."

Tiemann, speaking late Thursday to a seminar sponsored by the State Highways Department Right-of-Way Division, also said pipeline indecision has resulted in a halt of exploration for new Alaskan resources.

Thone recalled, when the pay of each senator and representative went from $30,000 to $42,500.

Rumors have it the commission presently working on salaries will suggest the $42,500 figure be upped to $55,000 this time around, Thone said. In addition, he noted, "a new bill is sailing through Congress that would provide for such a commission on high federal salaries every two years."

"I, together with some other members of Congress, have introduced bills to abolish the commission and its whole backdoor approach," Thone said. "As an alternative, we introduced another bill that would require that both the Senate and the House take record votes before any congressional pay raise can take effect."

But he said those bills, even though introduced as early as Jan. 6, are still in committee and no hearings on them have been scheduled.

Thone said when the bill to establish pay raise commissions every two years comes up for debate, it will be possible to offer as amendments the measures being held in committee.

He said if only the salaries of the 535 members of Congress were involved, a raise of $12,500 would cost taxpayers another $6 million annually, "which is a lot of money where I come from." But he said the same commission recommendations will also offer increases for several thousand high officials of the three branches of government.

The congressman predicted if congressional pay rises $12,500 annually, ultimately more than a million federal employees would have their salaries raised an average of $5,000 a year. "This would amount to a gouge of another $5 billion annually out of the taxpayers' pockets," he said.

Woman Dies In Accident At Holdrege

HOLDREGE, Neb. (AP)—A young woman was killed Thursday night when her car was in collision with a large trailer at a Holdrege intersection.

Authorities identified the victim as 20-year-old Mrs. Geraldine Marie Fetters, who was alone.

Phelps County Attorney J. Clark Noble said Mrs. Fetters' car was in collision with a trailer that was not hooked to its cab. The trailer was knocked off its wheels and it toppled, crushing the auto.

Protesting Housewives To Get Meatless Meals?

By The Associated Press

Protesting housewives who several months ago were advocating meatless meals because of high beef prices may soon be serving meatless meals, but for a different reason.

Industry leaders in Nebraska and over the country say that in coming weeks beef may not be available at any price at the retail level.

Industry spokesmen say cattle producers won't market their beef at current prices and packers cannot afford to slaughter livestock unless they can pass on higher production and labor costs to retailers and ultimately to consumers.

The cause of the problem, they agree, are restraints placed on beef prices under the Phase 4 economic program. The program retained a freeze on beef prices at retail which, in effect, froze beef down the line to the feedlot.

Producers, facing higher feed and production costs, say they cannot make ends met by selling cattle at the price packers say they can afford to pay. The packers, in turn, are governed by the retail price.

The immediate effect has been a drying up of beef supplies in the cattle markets, shutdowns in the slaughter industry and, in many parts of the country, a rush to stock up on beef ahead of expected shortages.

In the Midwest, where the majority of the nation's beef is raised and slaughtered, the meat industry is facing a crisis which spokesmen say can only be relieved by allowing beef to return to the open market.

The packers, upset with the Phase IV ceiling on beef prices,

Some recent examples:

—Flavorland Industries, Inc., of West Fargo, N.D., is closing its plants at Omaha and West Fargo. James R. McDonald, company president, said the company is unable to pass on increased livestock prices under ceiling price restrictions now in effect.

—Missouri Beef Packers Corp. at Rockport, Mo., is shutting down its operation. The plant employs 400 persons living in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska. Manager Murle Schraeder said the move is "absolutely necessary, otherwise we'd go bankrupt."

—Swift Fresh Meats Co. of Chicago is closing packing plants at Grand Island and Des Moines. The closings affect 550 employees. The firm blames "abnormal marketings of cattle since the beginning of Phase 4" for the decision to close.

—John Morrell and Co., South Dakota's largest meat packer, has laid off 200 workers at its Sioux Falls Plant. General manager Bob Atkins said the firm could not profitably buy live cattle and sell dressed beef under the ceiling.

—Scottsbluff Packing Co., which employs 55 workers, will close next week. Richard Corey, president, said, "We absolutely haven't been able to buy any cattle at all. The market is just too high."

—Union Packing Co. of Omaha has laid off 100 employees, about half of it working force. President Carl Frohm said the plant may have to close.

—American Stores Packing Co. in Lincoln has laid off 125 of the plant's 700 workers. George Davis, manager, indicated that it was only a matter of time until most packing plants will be forced to close.

—Kansas Beef Industries Inc., of Wichita will close Monday and 300 persons will be laid off. Kansas Beef normally processes 1,100 head of cattle a week.

Against the background of packing plant closures and a meat shortage, Midwestern political leaders and industry officials are pressing for an end to beef controls ahead of the Sept. 12 cutoff.

"They are saying that Americans would rather pay more for beef than to risk long-term damage to the industry which they say would lead to shortages and possible rationing in the future."

Map Strategy

Omaha (UPI) — Officials of 25 major independent meat packers mapped out strategy for a meeting early next week with the Cost of Living Council in Washington.

The packers, upset with the Phase IV ceiling on beef prices, said their kills are running at about 60% capacity and the situation will get worse next week. They placed the blame largely on speculators who purchase cattle at high prices both on the "hoof" and "futures" markets.

In addition, Van Kirk said, feeders are not going to maintain inventories and replace cattle in their yards when they know they are in a losing position before they start.

Elimination of the potential for profit is just as discouraging to enterprisers as to freeze them into a loss position, he maintained.

According to Van Kirk, the government freeze on prices, imposed at the insistence of consumer groups and labor leaders, has created more problems that it has solved. Every boycott of foods, whether it be meats, lettuce or table grapes, has lessened supplies and increased prices, he said.

Travnicek, Matlock To Meet For Women's State Golf Crown

By RANDY YORK
Hastings — No one was able to determine who had the toughest semifinal assignment, but Christie Travnicek and Gabrielle Matlock will provide a hint here Saturday in the finals of the Nebraska Women's State Golf Tournament.

Christie, seeking her fourth state championship in the last five years, was forced into sudden death for a second time this week Friday at Lochland Country Club before outlasting her mother, Dorothy Schwartzkopf, 1-up, on 19 holes.

Gabrielle, the Grand Island teenager who only last year was a fourth flight competitor, had an equally tense semifinal match. She sidelined defending state champion Dennis Phillips of Norfolk, 1-up, playing the last two holes in a drizzling rain.

Saturday's match play finals, which will decide the 55th state championship, is a grinding, 36-hole affair on Lochland's long 6,305-yard layout for women's competition. The two finalists tee off at 8:36 a.m. Laurie Glass of Beatrice and Mary Dosch of Grand Island start six minutes later for the consolation title.

If Christie has an advantage for Saturday's final, it's experience. She's been in the title match four times before. If Gabrielle has an edge, it's her exceptional long game, seemingly tailor-made for Lochland.

In truth, however, neither Christie nor Gabrielle advanced to the finals with dramatic flair.

Christie blistered Lochland for a 37 on the front nine, but saw a comfortable 4-stroke cushion evaporate on the back nine when her game "fell apart."

Gabrielle took a backway route to her win despite miscalculating on the monstrous, par five 435-yard 18th. She double bogeyed the hole with the match even, but Miss Phillips 3-putted for a triple bogey.

Both Gabrielle and Bonnie absorbed a penalty strain after stroking balls into the water on the decisive hole.

Miss Matlock's mistake, at the time at least, seemed more severe. She was in excellent position off the tee, but elected to "play it safe" with a 5-iron instead of reverting to her wood, what had been her strength.

"When Bonnie put one in the water with her wood, I decided to play it safe," explained Miss Matlock. "I had missed a couple of woods already. The minute I hit the ball though I knew what I did. My hips came through before my hands. I blew a perfect chance."

But Gabrielle has learned to rebound from adversity. She suffered three penalty strokes Friday, two in the trees on Nos. 5 and 17 and the one in the water on No. 18, but still posted a 42-43 — 85. Bonnie opened with a 40, but faded to a 46. She was 2-up at the turn, but fell behind after losing holes 10, 11 and 12.

"A couple of years ago, I would have been furious about taking a penalty into the trees," admitted Miss Matlock. "But my whole attitude has changed. I can forget about the bad shots and move on."

"After I bombed out of the fourth flight last year, I decided to really dig in," she added. "I was so embarrassed, losing both my matches in the fourth flight."

"My dad had been telling me I had the ability to be a good golfer," Gabrielle related, "so I said to myself if I have the ability, I'm going to prove it. I started thinking about this year's tournament when last year's was over."

Last January, Gabrielle spent a month in California on a Midland College inter-town trip, engineered by the school's golf coach, Dr. Cecil Walker.

"We went to the Glen Campbell and Dean Martin Opens and played a lot of golf out there that month," noted Gabrielle, who spent March through May getting more tips while correcting on Midland's golf team.

"I've spent all my time this summer on the golf course, too," she added. "I didn't even look for a summer job. I don't think I would have worried so hard on golf if I hadn't been so embarrassed last year."

Christie joked that she'd have to consult a psychiatrist to explain the psychological complexities of competing against her mom, who lost on the 18th hole when she bogeyed and Christie parred.

"I don't think I consciently let up the second nine, but maybe subconsciously I did," Christie said about losing the 4-hole lead. "But I'm not taking anything away from my mom. She shot a 41 on the front nine and was really a tiger on the back nine. We had said we were going to play bold golf. And I think we did."

BORNER, DECKERT IN TIE

... Duo Share Men's Lead

By HAL BROWN

Star Sports Editor
Omaha — Charlie Borneo of North Platte, who virtually grew up on a golf course, and Ken Deckert, a newcomer to Omaha who grew up not even knowing what golf was, share the lead in the 67th annual Nebraska Men's State Amateur golf tournament going into Saturday's final round at the Highland Country Club.

Borneo and Deckert both started Friday's third round three strokes off the pace being set by Mike Ley of Lincoln, who had posted a 36-hole total of one-under-par 143.

But with the three of them playing together in the final threesome, Borneo and Deckert came in with even-par 72s, while Ley skied to a nine-over-par 81.

That left the two leaders at two-over-par 218 for the 54 holes, three strokes in front of 18-year-old Tom Sieckman of Millard, who fired a 75 after starting the day tied with Borneo and Deckert for second place.

Jim Brownfield of Cozad is another two strokes back at 223 after a 72 Friday. Then comes Ley at 224 and at 225 is defending champion Dan Bahensky of Lincoln with a 73 Friday. Dennis Houlihan of Omaha, with a 78 Friday, and Guy Lammie of Auburn with a 75 Friday.

Howard Cohn, a Highland Country Club member who started the day in that four-way tie for second wound up with an 84 for a 230 total and eight-time champion Bob Astleford of Omaha had an 80 for 232.

Deckert, Brownfield and Bahensky will tee off at 10:16 a.m. Saturday with Borneo, Sieckman and Ley going at 10:24.

Borneo is a familiar name in Nebraska golf circles, playing in his 11th Men's State Amateur at the age of 27 and having won twice (1968 at Lincoln's Hillcrest Country Club and 1970 at Omaha's Happy Hollow Country Club.)

The name Deckert is not familiar.

In fact, a mistake at a mailbox almost kept him out of the tournament.

The 28-year-old native of Blue Springs, Mo., came to Omaha only this year so his wife, Dr. Rosalie Deckert, could serve her residency at an Omaha hospital.

"I saw in the Sunday paper where the deadline for the tournament was nearing," he explained. "So I made out an entry and dropped it in a mailbox. Then I noticed on the mailbox that it said the mail wouldn't be picked until two o'clock Monday afternoon. I reached into the mailbox and tried to get the letter back, but I couldn't."

By the time it got to the tournament officials, they already had 150 (the limit) and I was No. 2 on the waiting list."

When there were a couple of dropouts, Deckert got in, receiving a call from Nebraska Amateur Golf Association executive secretary Del Ryder of Grand Island at 11 p.m. last Saturday telling him he was in the tournament.

Deckert had been playing golf for only 4½ years and had never had a golf lesson, however both Borneo and Ley point out. "He has a good swing and he plays well."

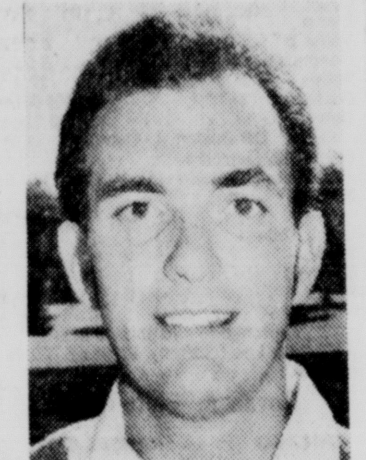

"I grew up on a farm and didn't even know what golf was," he said. "To me, golf was a rich man's game."

"But I finally started playing it because at Blue Springs, there isn't anything to do except play golf or bowl." Borneo and Deckert both started Friday's round by bogeying the first hole.

But Borneo rallied with birdies on Nos. 2 and 3 coming out of a sand trap for a one-foot birdie putt on the second and sinking a 10-footer on the third.

Errant tee shots at Nos. 6, 8 and 9 cost Borneo bogeys as he made the turn 2-over-par 38. He got back to even par for the day with a five-foot birdie putt at the 12th and a 15-footer at No. 13.

The North Platte schoolteacher, who still makes his summer home in Lincoln, where he grew up, had to sink a 15-footer on the final hole to save par and keep a share of the lead.

Deckert added a bogey at No. 5 to make the turn at 38 also, but then birdied three holes on the backside to offset another bogey at the 14th.

He birdied the 10th with a four-footer, the 15th from 10 feet and the 16th from 22 feet.

His birdie on 15, a 555-yard, par-5 was accomplished after his second shot found a fairway bunker 140 yards from the green.

He put his 9-iron shot out of the bunker 10 feet from the pin and made the putt.

Ley's troubles en route to his 81 started at the second hole normally a birdie hole at 502 yards and par-5. Three tries with a 2-iron from the rough moved his ball a total of only 30 yards en route to a triple bogey 8.

But while Ley figures he may have shot himself out of the championship picture with his 81, he figures several others in addition to Borneo and Deckert still have a shot at the title.

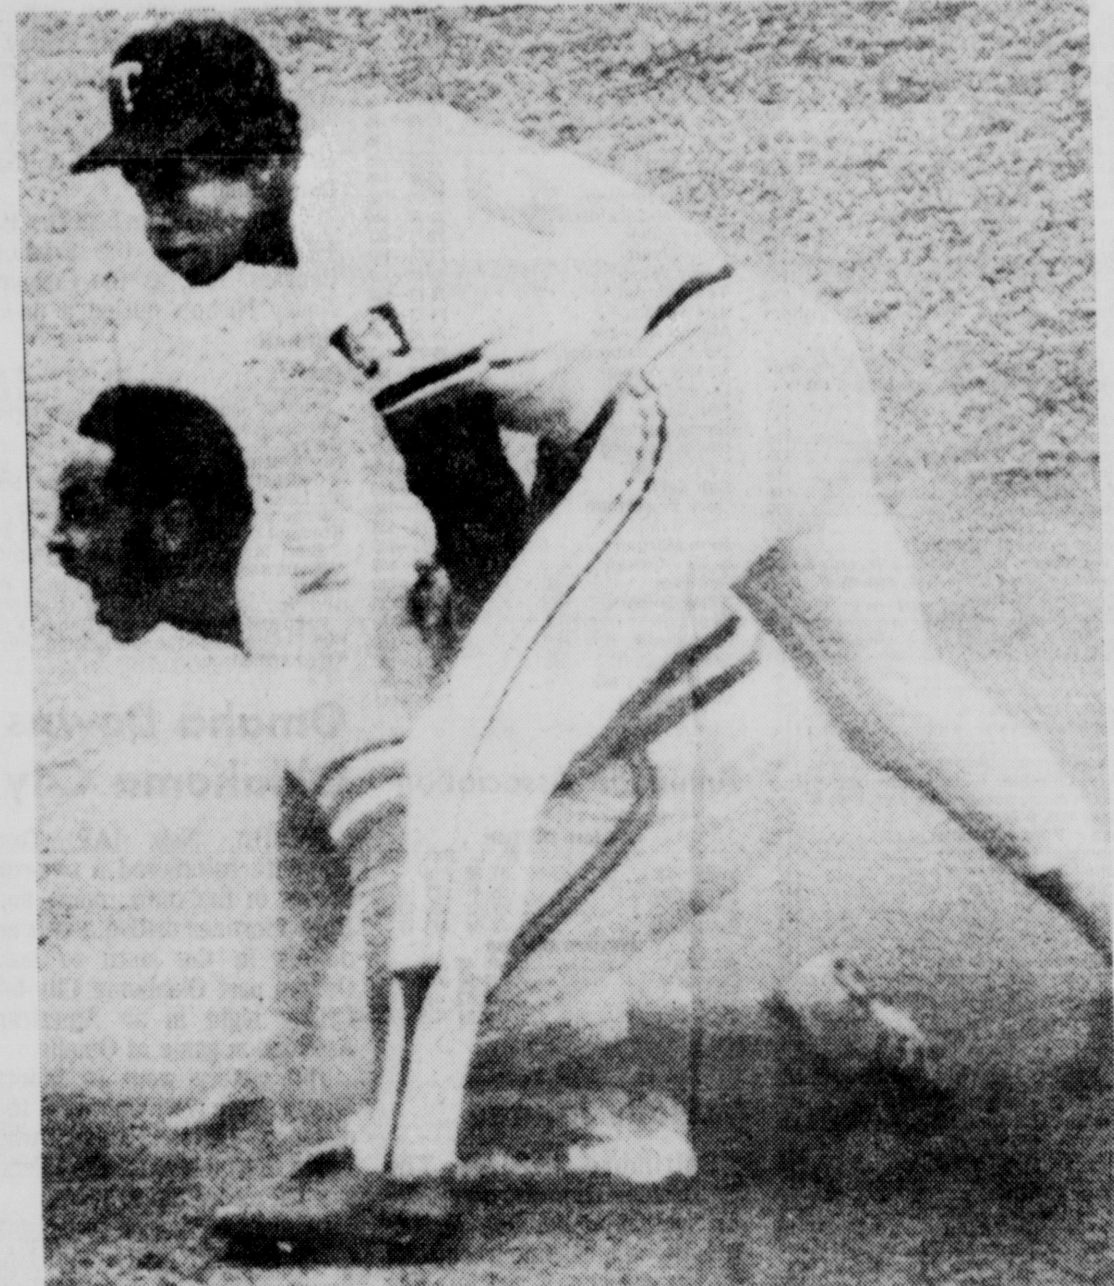

"Golf is a funny game," the first-round co-leader at 69 and the sole leader after the second round points out. "Just look what happened to me."

"It's possible for someone to shoot a 67 or 68. Bahensky could. Brownfield could."

"And look at Sieckman. He's only three shots back. If he shoots 71 tomorrow (Saturday) and the leaders shoot 74, there's a tie."

SAFE, BUT HURT... Is A's North below Carew at second.

Palmer, Sluggers Top Major League Action

By The Associated Press

A couple of sluggers, Johnny Bench of Cincinnati and George Mitterwald of Minnesota, made headlines in major league baseball Friday along with a pitcher, Jim Palmer of Baltimore.

Bench drove in six runs with two homers and a bases-loaded walk to help the Reds crush Atlanta 12-2 behind a five-hitter by Jack Billingham.

Mitterwald slammed his fourth homer in four games, igniting a seven-run first inning for the Twins as they made it three in a row over Oakland 8-2.

Palmer turned in a one-hitter in pitching the Orioles to a 9-0 shutout of Cleveland in the first game of a doubleheader. He had a no-hitter going until George Hendrick singled to start the eighth inning for the Indians.

Baltimore made it a sweep by also beating the Indians 5-2 in the second game. Andy Etchebarren's three-run double offset two solo homers by Charlie Spikes for Cleveland.

Roy White's eighth-inning triple followed by Ron Blomberg's RBI single gave the New York Yankees a 7-6 victory over Milwaukee and Pittsburgh exploded a 21-hit attack for a 10-6 triumph over the slumping Chicago Cubs.

Texas made it six in a row by beating California 5-2 on Tom Grieve's first homer of the year. It came with two on in the second inning and provided the margin of victory. Houston stopped Los Angeles 5-2 on a three-run fifth inning capped by Roger Metzger's triple.

In other games Detroit beat Boston 4-2, Montreal edged Philadelphia 5-4, the New York Mets stopped St. Louis 2-1 and Kansas City shaded the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 10 innings.

Al Kaline singled home two runs in the eighth that broke a tie and gave the Tigers their 10th victory in 11 games with the Red Sox this season. The Expos beat the Phillies on Mike Jorgensen's two-run triple in the ninth.

Rusty Staub's two-out double in the sixth scored Felix Millan with the winning run for the Mets against the Cardinals. Tom Seaver went the route for the Mets and fanned eight to take the NL lead with 154 whiffs. Carl Taylor singled home the winning run in the 10th for the Royals against the White Sox.

The tournament, sponsored by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department, will feature singles and doubles competition in men's, women's and senior men's divisions with a mixed doubles competition also scheduled.

The tournament will feature a "no-add" scoring system. A player needs only four points to win a game with no deuces. Matches will be best two out of three sets.

Bill North, of Lincoln, who won the men's singles championship last year, is again entered in the tournament. North, who captured his fourth consecutive Kiwanis tennis tournament crown three weeks ago, defeated Harry Taylor of Omaha, 3-6, 6-2, and 7-6 in the finals last year.

Co-tournament directors Mark Jeter and Carmen Grant estimated almost 100 entries from a four-state area, including Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri.

Some of the Saturday matches will be played at the University of Nebraska courts. All semifinals and finals will be played at Woods, beginning at 9 a.m. Sunday.

Agar Course Hosts Meet

The seventh annual Jim Agar Memorial Golf Course championship tournament, sponsored by the Lincoln Association of Life Underwriters, will be held August 8-11.

Entries are limited to boys and girls ages eight through 15. Applications may be obtained at the Jim Agar Golf Course. No entry fee is required. The entry deadline is August 5.

Plucknett Third Against Soviets

Odessa, U.S.S.R. (AP — Ben Plucknett, a Beatrice, Neb., native who competes for the University of Missouri track team during the spring, placed third in the discus in the United States-U.S.S.R. dual junior track and field meet.

Plucknett tossed the discus 160-0¼ to top the Americans. Russian youths took first and second in the event.

The U.S. boys' team led the Russians, 64-61, at the halfway mark with the Soviet girls in front of the U.S. girls, 45-38, for an aggregate lead of 106-102.

Larry Leroy Tops Entry List

By RANDY EICKHOFF

Star Sports Writer
Larry Leroy has his work cut out for him in the State Fair Handicap Saturday at the State Fairgrounds as he challenges a field of six while carrying topweight of 120 pounds over the six-furlong sprint for 3-year-old colts and geldings.

Doug Schoepf has been selected to ride Robert Snell's Larry Leroy in an attempt to collect the $1,750 first-place money but will have to face stiff challenges from Wayne Anderson and Merrill's Flight, owned by M. D. Van Patten, who has been assigned second topweight of 117 pounds by racing secretary Dean Williams.

But it will definitely be Larry Leroy who will draw most of the attention from bettors as the brown colt goes after his fifth 1973 victory having posted three wins at Fanner Park earlier this year and capturing the $10,000 Inaugural Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben. In that race he defeated such standouts as Pro Raja, Hampens Hawa, Stake Driver, and Mighty Kameha.

Both Larry Leroy and Merrill's Flight will be making their first Lincoln appearances.

Tim's Royal Stinger, slated to carry Jim Bazer at 115 pounds, won his only start at the Fairgrounds in an allowance test over six furlongs last Wednesday defeating Amies Supreme and Better Shooter.

Gem D. H. and Dave King will team up at 114 pounds after posting a third-place finish in an allowance scamper over six furlongs, finishing behind Gray Pine and Wally White Eye over an off-track.

Aunt Priscilla Finally Wins

At Last! I didn't think I would ever cash a winning ticket, but thanks to Happy Vie in the fifth, I managed to collect $5.20 on my $2 investment.

Unfortunately, that little darling Persimmon Hill just couldn't last over that long mile in the eighth race at the fairgrounds Friday and finished next-to-last after leading for almost the whole distance. Seeing as he went off at 7-1 I found myself trying to help him on so hard I almost fell down those steep stairs.

That win by Happy Vie, however, made me a $1.20 winner for the day to boost my $108 spree fund up to $85.80.

I'll try to add even more Saturday with $2 win tickets on Burgundy Street in the fifth and Great Pumpkin in the ninth. That little darling Great Pumpkin won me a little money last year and I hope he can do it again.

Aunt Priscilla Won $1.20

Man will carry 115 pounds while Deserata (109) and Dave The Dancer (108) complete the field of seven.

In Friday's feature, Affair Turn and Dave King teamed as the even-money favorite to win by one and one-half lengths over Fast 'N Accurate.

Affair Turn broke from the gate in second place and stayed a length behind front-running Bet's Robin Jac until the second turn when the 4-year-old brown gelding moved past on the inside to claim the lead.

Coming down the homestretch, Affair Turn stumbled 100 yards from the finish line and broke stride, but recovered to stave off the closing bid of Fast 'N Accurate.

Bet's Robin Jac, the leader faded badly 300 yards from the finish and ended dead-last in the field of five traveling the mile and seventy yard distance.

Yaldara, with Raymond Hancock in the irons, ran last until the head of the stretch when he moved outside under steady urging to finish third by a nose over Don I and four lengths behind Affair Turn.

Affair Turn returned $4.00, $2.60 and $2.20 to backers in the crowd of 5,189 with Fast 'N Accurate returning $4.00 and $2.20. Yaldara showed for $2.20.

It was Affair Turn's second win in 15 starts this year and but his first at the Fairgrounds, losing to Swift Capture by one length over an identical distance on a sloppy track.

This time, he covered the distance in 1:47 2/5 over a fast track.

Dolphins Trim College All-Stars, 14-3

CHICAGO (AP) — The bristling College All-Stars, rated 17-point underdogs, carried the game to the World Champion Miami Dolphins but yielded two touchdowns to crashing fullback Larry Csonka and bowed 14-3 in the 40th All-Star Football Game Friday night.

Before going down for the collegians' 10th straight defeat on rain-drenched Soldier Field, the All-Stars missed a touchdown by six inches and outplayed the National Football League champion Dolphins between Csonka's touchdown smashes leading off the first and fourth quarters.

The punting of Southern Mississippi's Ray Guy and the sharp quarterbacking of Bert Jones of Louisiana State thrilled a capacity throng of 54,103, which was thoroughly drenched by a torrential downpour at halftime of the nationally televised game.

Guy provided the All-Stars' only points with a 10-yard field goal with 15 seconds left in the first half when the best All-Star thrust of the game stalled after reaching the Dolphin six-inch line.

It took a fourth-quarter rally on the passing of 39-year-old Earl Morrall, in relief of Bob Griese, to wrap up the Dolphins' hard-earned victory with Csonka's seven-yard scoring smash after 3:57 of the fourth period.

Csonka, who bulled three yards for the first Miami touchdown to cap a 60-yard drive in the opening quarter, got his second touchdown after Morrall whipped a pair of decisive passes to Jim Mandich.

Secretariat Sets Marks

Saratoga Springs, N. Y. (UPI) — The amazing Secretariat, who only Thursday was put in a match race against his stablemate Riva Ridge, set two track records while working in the sloop at Saratoga Friday as he prepped for the Whitney Stakes here on Aug. 4.

The Triple Crown winner from the Meadow Stable sizzled a mile in 1:34 flat with jockey Ron Turcotte in the saddle to lower the old mark by 4-5 of a second. Roamer, who raced against the clock, and Pluck shared the previous best for a mile at Saratoga with a 1:34.45 clocking.

But Secretariat wasn't through. With Turcotte pulling back on the reins, the big 3-year-old colt, galloped out 1 1/2 miles in 1:47.45 to establish another Saratoga mark. Stupendous race that distance in 1967 in 1:48.15.

Secretariat worked in blazing sprint fractions over the first six furlongs, going out in 45.25 seconds and clocking 1:09.15 for the first six panels. And all this on a track rated "sloppy."

Bicentennial Commission Approval Is Given Grants

Grants given approval by the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission Friday included $2,000 to go toward the cost of decorating a Governor's First Ladies Room in the Governor's Mansion.

The grant will come out of federal funds allocated to the commission.

Other grants given approval included $5,000 each to the foundations for Willa Cather, John Neihardt, Marie Sandoz.

The Arbor Day Foundation also received a $7,000 grant to help continue the Arbor Day program. A grant of $2,500 went to the University of Nebraska to prepare a "climatological atlas" of Nebraska. The Nebraska Educational Television Network (NETV) received a grant of $2,600 to help defray the cost of filming a local festival in Nebraska.

The commission also formally endorsed a grant application from Doane College to the National Arts Foundation in Washington, D.C.

The federal funds sought would be used to study the art and culture of five small communities in Nebraska. The commission's action has no effect other than to provide support for the application.

Other than the $2,000 grant approved for the First Ladies Room, all grants use nonappropriated funds raised through the sale of bicentennial medals and stamps.

According to Eleanor Crosier, assistant director of the commission, the next meeting will be held August 24th in the NETV building at 1800 No. 33rd in Lincoln.

Advisory Group Picks Two Goals From Study

The Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC) Friday picked out two more goals from the 1961 Barton-Aschman study and added them to their list of basic goals for central Lincoln.

The committee is straining through the Barton-Aschman downtown development study and the Goals and Policies report as the first step in developing and implementing a detailed physical and economic plan for the central business district in Lincoln.

The two goals adopted Friday at the second meeting of the DAC were:

—Central Lincoln should serve as a stimulating dwelling place

Woman Claims She Was Raped After I-80 Trip

A 31-year-old Lincoln woman told Lincoln police early Friday morning that she was raped at her home by one of two men who followed her on Interstate-80 from Grand Island to Lincoln.

The woman told police that she waved back at two men in a car that passed her on the Interstate. Later, she said, she passed the car after it apparently had been flagged down by the State Patrol, and again waved.

Later the two men in the car caught up with her and forced her to pull over to the side of the road and struck up a conversation with her.

After she started driving again, she said, she had car trouble and stopped three times. Each time, she said, the men also stopped and checked her car.

The woman said that after she arrived home her husband left for work and the two men reappeared and forced their way into the home. She said one of the men forced her into a bedroom and raped her.

for those persons whose inclinations and employment draw them there.

—To enhance and strengthen central Lincoln. Circulation facilities should provide for pleasant, direct internal movement, especially for pedestrians.

The goal as submitted to the DAC by member Barbara Henderson would have also included a recommendation that a pedestrian mall on 15th Street should be built.

After discussion, however, that portion of the goals was eliminated — at least for now, after members said they felt the basic goals should be broad and specifics should come later.

The DAC's next meeting will be Friday.

Retired Senior Program Goals Are Discussed

The advisory committee for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) met to organize and discuss project goals.

According to J. Alan Hansen, acting project director, the group decided RSVP should focus on the welfare of retired persons, using volunteer activities not only to contribute to the community, but also to interest and benefit retired individuals.

The committee also agreed that RSVP should work with other retired citizens and volunteer organizations, Hansen reported.

Hansen and Theresa Sledge, assistant director, were asked to present an operational plan at the Aug. 10 meeting to achieve this goal.

The name of the group's sponsoring agency has been changed to Community Education and Development, Inc.

A 71-year-old Lincoln woman was listed in serious condition at Lincoln General Hospital after she was struck by a car Friday morning at 27th and O.

Police said Grethel Z. Fowler, of 2913 P suffered head injuries when she was struck by a car driven by Nicola A. Petrer, 38, of 1910 No. 28th.

Petrer, westbound on O, stopped for the stoplight and then turned right, police said. Petrera struck Grethel Fowler as she was walking in the crosswalk across 27th, police said.

Police said a right turn on a red stoplight is permitted onto 27th St. from the westbound lanes of O St. after the driver comes to a complete stop.

Obering Says Road Is Not Radial Work

Public Works Director Bob Obering said Friday that the road being built extending Fremont east of 70th will give access to Mahoney Park.

On Thursday Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf denied that construction of the gravelled road from 70th to 84th is the beginning stage of construction for the Northeast Radial.

The radial's path runs along the same bed as the road now under construction.

Obering said the park is about a quarter of a mile east of 70th and that the two-lane road will give park department crews and later the public access into the park.

The park is just being developed, with construction of ball diamonds just getting under way at the west end of the track near 84th.

Plans call for a park department road to run north off the Fremont extension into the north half of the park.

Obering noted, however, that the extension will not be cut through to 84th but will stop some "600 to 700 feet" east of 84th. So, when the park is open to the public, access will be from 70th — not 84th, he said.

When asked if the east-west road now under construction by private contractor will be cut through to 84th, Obering stated,

"I don't have any other plans."

He explained that the decision was made to construct the access road because "We couldn't find enough dirt anywhere else." Dirt from the construction site is being hauled to a paving district project under construction on Normal Blvd. near Holmes Lake.

Funds for the grading and graveling work on the Fremont extension are being channeled out of paving subsidy monies budgeted for that Normal Blvd. paving district.

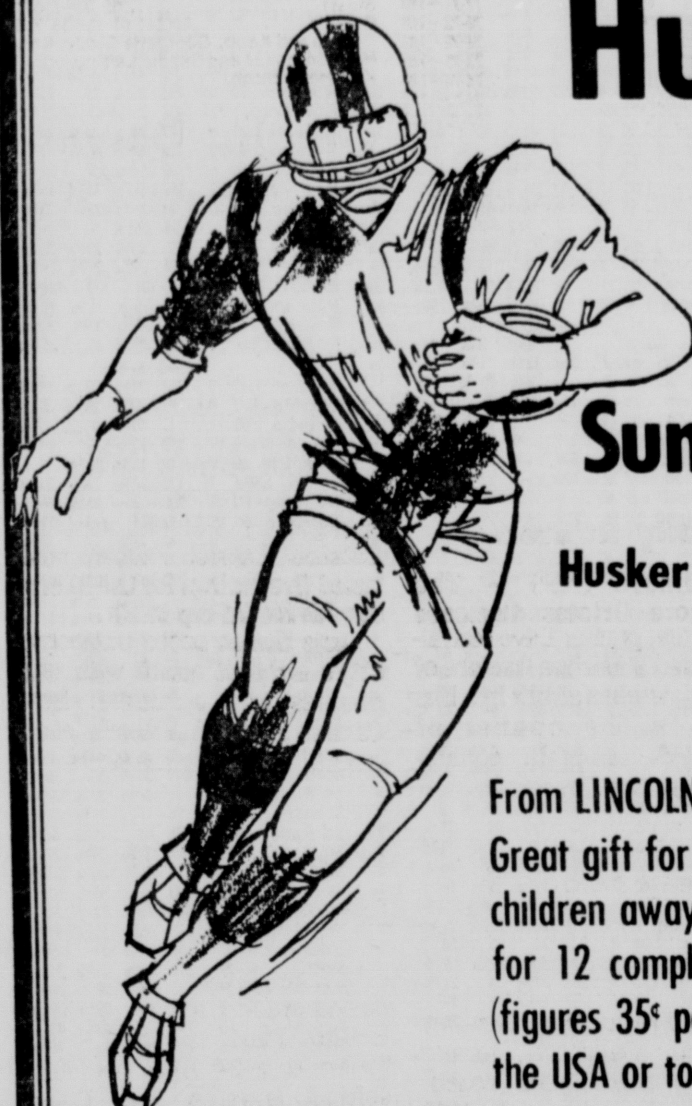

Lincoln Man Hurt In Crash

A 23-year-old Lincoln man was listed in fair condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital following a car-motorcycle accident Friday morning at 48th and Orchard.

Police said Dennis Zier, of 2045 No. 63rd sustained a broken leg when his motorcycle, southbound on 48th St., was struck by a car driven by Dale J. Hatch, 46, of 4701 Hillside as Hatch turned left from the southbound lane of 48th St. onto Orchard.

Zier told police that he had been following a camper and had changed to the outer lane of 48th St. shortly before the intersection when the camper signaled for a left turn.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
